

Manzanita rebuilds, honors responders after tornado

Still too early for damage estimates

"We're trying to find what insurance is doing and who's doing what," she said Friday. "What we're coming to find is that there's more homes with damage that wasn't visible."

Doors not being able to shut are indications that "something shifted," Grasseh said. "Some people are not even aware there is damage to their homes."

Engineers are being called in to examine homes in the tornado's path. Grasseh described one property on cinder blocks that shifted 19 inches. "That house is coming down," she said. "Those are the things we're up against right now."

On Friday, Laneda Avenue was closed throughout the day from Third Street North to Fourth Street North so that a contractor could remove the roof from the damaged building across from the post office.

The Manzanita City Council meeting on Nov. 9 will provide an update and "we'll see where things are at," Grasseh said.

Haag invited Seaside chamber members to show their gratitude to first responders, utility workers, city employees and local contractors, among others, at a breakfast held Saturday at the Pine Grove Community House in Manzanita.

"We're very fortunate," Haag said. "We have a very well-oiled, well-prepared emergency response team. Everybody jumped right into action."

"We're very fortunate," Haag said. "We have a very well-oiled, well-prepared emergency response team. Everybody jumped right into action."

Estimating damages
At a special Manzanita City Council meeting Oct. 21, officials estimated they had spent about $35,000 clearing debris from city rights-of-way.

The decision was made to wait and see how much debris remains after a few weeks before possibly making damage estimates, according to Manzanita Administrative Assistant Kristin Grasseh.

Submitted Drawing
Red markings indicate damage to homes in Manzanita.

The best way to help with the recovery, he added, is to come to Manzanita. "Come visit your favorite shop, have a meal at your favorite restaurant, say 'Hi' to your local merchants," Haag said. "They'll love you for it."

Appeals court ruling sides with Astoria contractor

Big River sued Tillamook over project delays

The Daily Astorian

The Oregon Court of Appeals has ruled in favor of an Astoria contractor that sued Tillamook for breach of contract over a wastewater treatment plant expansion.

Big River Construction claimed design problems and mismanagement by an engineering firm hired by the city caused costly delays to the project. The treatment plant expansion began in 2007 and was initially scheduled for completion by 2008, then pushed back to 2009. The project did not wrap up until 2010.

Big River sued the city in Circuit Court and a jury awarded the company $1.5 million in 2012. The city appealed the judgment and money award.

The appeals court, in a ruling Wednesday, sided with Big River but sent the case back to the lower court to clarify some of the issues related to damages.

"The jury's verdict and the Court of Appeals' concurrence confirmed that Big River was right that it was the engineer that caused the extra cost, not the contractor," said Darien Loisselle, a Portland attorney for Big River.

"We're hopeful now that the matter can be finally resolved."

Tillamook City Manager Paul Wyntergreen said Friday he was still analyzing the appeals court ruling so he could not comment.
