

Chefs: Event helps chefs up their game

The goal is to raise $50,000, Lolich said, through ticket sales, silent auction and raffle. Food, wine and beer were donated by participating restaurants. All of the proceeds go to the county's United Way to support local nonprofits. Jim Coffee, deputy director of Cowlitz Family Health Center, won the open judge's seat for $1,700 in a lively auction.

"It's more than a food event," Clatsop County United Way Executive Director Jennifer Holen added. "Right here, this is community,"

One hour

Chef contestants were given one hour to cook and prepare three courses: a soup or salad, appetizer and entree. After serving, five judges had 10 minutes to taste and finalize their scorecards. Audience members were asked to select their favorite appetizer and dessert.

Jeff Graham, the executive chef at Fort George Brewery and Public House, celebrated sustainable and local cuisine.

"Our chickens are grown 15 miles away in Svensen," Graham said. "We get them the same day they are slaughtered. They're fresh as can be, pasture-raised."

Graham, who arrived at the brewery in January, presented guests with an appetizer of confit pork belly cured for 24 hours and cooked in its own fat.

"It's served with mustard made with our Plaid Scotch Ale, pickles made with our Optimist IPA," Graham said. "We've made a malt vinegar with Optimist, and we made the pickles with that. And we have a tomato marmalade, some chicharrónes and some lavash crackers. You get the spicy, the heat, the vinegar, the sugars from the marmalade and rich pork."

Chef Steven DeKay of Maggie's on the Prom in Seaside offered a honey-butter sea scallop served on a bed of roasted corn and chilled orzo salad with strawberry relish.

"I selected this dish because it's one of the most popular dishes at the restaurant," DeKay said. "We serve a really nice large scallop and we know how to prepare it. We really wanted to show people how a scallop should be cooked."

Myles Penfold of Twisted

out there for a great cause as well," Maggie's on the Prom owner Sadie Mercer added. "It's not often you get 600 people in one room, many of which never knew we existed. To be able to present our best and something great at that moment, it's a great opportunity."

Aaron Bedard of the Stephanie Inn Dining Room and Chef Josh Archibald of the Wayfarer, both of Cannon Beach, teamed up to present an all-natural free-range chicken appetizer.

"We've done a classic cured and confit method," Bedard said. "We cured it for a couple of hours, cooked it in duck fat until it's nice and tender, then we've topped it with locally foraged chanterelle mushrooms and a little bit of petite herbs dressed in Oregon olive oil and Jacobsen's sea salt as well."

"This is a really great event for us," Bedard said. "In our small community that's what it's all about. It's community coming together and helping each other and supporting each other. We're really happy to be a part of it, and to be part of our small community."

Fish, participating in his fifth Iron Chef competition, served an appetizer of basil-marinated tenderloin on a hazelnut cracker with yellow-roasted tomato spread garnished with goat cheese, hazelnuts and balsamic and rainbow microgreens.

The concept originated during the steak special night at the restaurant on Broadway in Seaside. "I wanted to do a little twist on the dinner special and this is what I came up with," Penfold said.

Upping their game

The Iron Chef event helps chefs up their game, Penfold said, by allowing them to see other chefs in action. "It helps you broaden your aspect on food."

"It gets us the positive exposure, getting your name

Wing: 'I thought it would get better, but it never did'

Prosecutors believe all three children were tortured, burned, bitten and caged in the months before Evangelina's death. Copious blood spatter was discovered around the apartment. The discoveries have been described as one of the worst cases of child abuse in Clatsop County's history.

Roden was found guilty Monday of murder by abuse, manslaughter, criminal mistreatment and assault. He avoided more serious charges, including four counts of aggravated murder, for which he faced the death penalty.

Roden faces up to 35 years in prison. He will be sentenced later this month.

Wing, who has previously admitted culpability in what happened to her children, said she had hoped that the stories Roden told her about her children's injuries under his care were true.

"I know I messed up," she said, at times approaching tears. "I know I didn't protect my kids the way I should have."

"That's all I care about, is that they're safe now."

Circuit Court Judge Paula Brownhill admonished Wing for allowing the abuse of her children, before agreeing to sentence her to 190 months in prison.

"You saw all of it, and you just turned your head?" Brownhill asked Wing. "I thought it would get better, but it never did," Wing said.

Prosecutor Dawn Buzard and Wing's attorney, John Gutbezah, both said the case is a cautionary tale for parents to be careful who they allow around their children.
