

Tickets on sale for food bank fundraiser

CANNON BEACH — Tickets are on sale for Clatsop Community Action's seventh annual fundraiser, Coastal Harvest of Giving, which takes place Nov. 18.

The event helps fund the nonprofit's Regional Food Bank, a central clearing-house for food donations on the North Coast. CCA invites Coastal Harvest of Giving attendees to help the organization continue to supply food and nutritional education to low-income residents in Clatsop County.

"Not only are we addressing the issue of hunger today, putting enough food on the table for 1,450,610 meals for low-income residents, but we are making great headway in impacting the lives of those we serve by improving their diets," said Marlin Martin of CCA Regional Food Bank.

The fine dining event includes dinner served in the Surfsand Resort Ballroom, located at 48 Gower Ave.

The 170 tickets are first-come, first-served and cost $150 per person. Two-thirds of the price is tax-deductible. Tickets are available until Nov. 11. Call 503-861-3663, or email mmartin@ccaservices.org

Talk to address aging, intergenerational friendship

Hoffman Center hosts Oregon Humanities event

MANZANITA — The Hoffman Center for the Arts will host an Oregon Humanities Conversation Project talk — "Just a Number: Aging and Intergenerational Friendship" — at 3 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 8. The event will be part of the Hoffman Center's Art of Aging Series. Admission will be $5.

Independent scholars Jenny Sasser and Simeon Dreyfuss will lead an open discussion about how people experience aging in community. Questions to be addressed include: How do we acknowledge both the universality of aging and the differences we experience? How do we create meaningful connections with others of different ages and life stages?

"Aging is a life-long experience that is both universal and different for everyone," according to the Conversation Project's program explanation. "While people of different generations have wisdom to offer those who are ahead of or behind them in life's journey, barriers to connection often persist between generations. Many of these barriers are rooted in our ideas about age and aging."

Sasser is an educational gerontologist, transdisciplinary scholar and community activist. She has worked in the field of gerontology for more than half her life, beginning as a nursing assistant and aging advocate before focusing on research, writing and teaching.

Dreyfuss is a writer and independent interdisciplinary scholar. His undergraduate studies were in the interdisciplinary liberal arts with concentrations in writing, literature, anthropology and philosophy. His graduate work was in English and creative writing.

Cabaret-style concert slated in Long Beach

Peninsula Arts Center hosts blues man Albert Reda

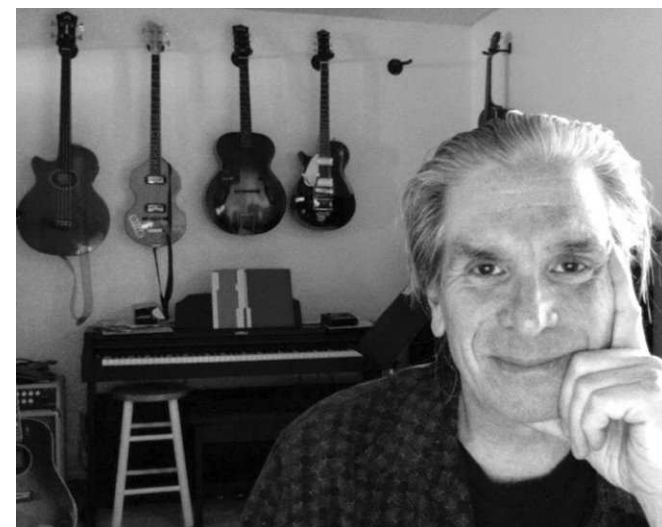

LONG BEACH, Wash. — Audiences at the Peninsula Arts Center may be familiar with Albert Reda from his appearances as bass player and vocalist with blues guitarist Terry Robb. This time, however, Reda will be doing a solo show on piano, showcasing old favorites, some originals, audience requests, and a chance for some dancing. This cabaret-style piano and vocal show will take place at 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 5.

Reda has been in the heart of West Coast music for 40 years. Beginning in 1977, and throughout most of 1978, Reda performed regularly in San Francisco music and comedy clubs with Donald Freda as the duo Reda and Freda. During this time, they opened for or shared the bill with many comics, including a young Robin Williams and Dana Carvey.

In 1979, Reda joined the seminal West Coast punk band Mutants, and beginning in 1980 began performing regularly in the traveling oldies act Cruisin', playing the bass, piano and singing. This band would play a "History of Rock & Roll" type show in clubs in the Bay Area. When they weren't performing in the Bay Area, Cruisin' could be found traveling throughout northern California on oldies tours with Wolfman Jack and backing up groups like the Drifters and the Coasters.

In 1988, Reda moved to Portland and for the past 25 years has been playing with Northwest blues artists such as Robb, Lloyd Jones, Duffy Bishop, Bill Rhodes, Robbie Laws, (all members of the Cascade Blues Association's hall of fame) and many others. He's received 11 Muddy awards from the Cascade Blues Association and has been inducted into their hall of fame for winning the award for bass three years running in the 1990s.

The Peninsula Arts Center is located at 504 Pacific Ave. N. Admission to the concert is $12 at the door or online through Brown Paper Tickets, or call Bill at 360-901-0962.

Wine, beer, and other refreshments will be available for purchase.

Concerts benefit the Long Beach Peninsula Acoustic Music Foundation, a 501(c)3 nonprofit charitable organization.
