Donkey basketball event raises money and hope

Games at Armory benefit Shriners

The scoring was minimal, but so was the poop on the court.

A five-team, five-on-five donkey basketball tournament at the Astoria Armory Saturday raised at least $1,500 for the Al Kader Shriners of Clatsop County.

The home-court Astoria Armory Donkey Boys rode to the championship over teams from Medix Ambulance, Seaside Police Department and Tongue Point Job Corps Center.

The event benefited the Shriners, which provides financial support for screening and care for certain conditions treated at the nonprofit Shriners Hospital for Children in Portland. The group also helps organize the East-West Shrine Game, an all-star match between the best Oregon senior high school footballers on each side of the state that also supports the hospital.

"Donkey basketball has been something that quite a few of the (Shriners) clubs put on," said Victor Kee, president of the local Shriners chapter. Volunteers from the Evergreen Masonic Lodge in Seaside also staffed the event.

Kee said the money made from the tournament will support an April banquet at the Astoria Masonic Lodge honoring the local additions to the East-West Shrine Game.

Herding cats

Five-person teams duked it out in Saturday's tournament, four in the saddle and one in a circle at center court trying to distribute and steal inbounds passes.

"I had a better time herding cats than trying to get these guys to" cooperate, said Steven Zamora, a driver for Medix Ambulance who at one point was thrown from the saddle when his ride started bucking.

The first match started with the donkeys taking their novice riders over the court barriers and around the gym, to the delight of the 100 or so spectators. The donkeys, from Icicle Outfitters in Leavenworth, Washington, challenged riders to control the reins and shoot, often one-handed, from a slow trot. Fast breaks turned into slow stampedes, with riders trying to outrun defenses and direct their donkeys toward the hoop for a layup.

"At first it was really hard," said Ayelech Bushnell, on the first of Tongue Point's two teams, adding that some harder tugging on the reins got the donkeys to respond.

Her team beat the Seaside Police in the afternoon's first game and eventually fell to the Donkey Boys, made up partially from members of the Armory Skatepark downstairs, in the final.

Providing care

Robin Koustik, the Armory's lone employee, sat this tournament out. But for the former Shriners patient, helping the group and playing in previous tournaments is like giving back.

Koustik was born with a congenitally deformed left leg and soon ended up a patient at the Shriners hospital in Portland. The hospitals treat clubfoot, hand disorders, limb deficiencies and discrepancies, hip disorders, scoliosis, brittle bone disease, juvenile idiopathic arthritis and orthopedic problems associated with cerebral palsy and split spine. The care is provided regardless of a patient's ability to pay.

"I have had 29 surgeries on my left leg," Koustik said. "I lived in Shriners from age 1 to 3. They covered me until I was 21."

Koustik said that while she was in the hospital, she often spent half a year in crutches or a wheelchair, with continual visits by Shriners and Masons to lift her spirits. She now plays for the Shanghaied Roller Dolls and said the hospital's care helped make her limp barely noticeable.

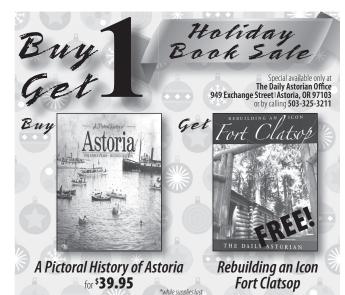

That made me want to be as active as possible, because you only have it for a short period of time, whether you're healthy or not," she said.

Kee said the Shriners used to do two medical screening events a year, but now encourage kids who might have the conditions listed to get screened by doctors. He added that many doctors donate their time for the screenings. "If cost is an issue, we'll make sure it gets screened," he said.

Dozens of people gathered at the Garden of Surging Waves in Astoria Friday evening for a demonstration against President-elect Donald Trump. The protest was one of several across the nation over the weekend as people responded to the Republican real estate magnate's unexpected victory. More photos online.

Astoria Police identify body under Old Youngs Bay Bridge

By ERICK BENGEL
The Daily Astorian

The Astoria Police Department has identified the body found in the water beneath

the Old Youngs Bay Bridge

Thursday as John Michael

McCauley, 78, of Astoria.

The Clatsop County Medical Examiner, in consultation with the state medical examiner's office, determined that McCauley died from drowning.

Investigators have ruled out foul play in the death, which occurred within the last few days, Astoria Police Deputy Chief Eric Halverson said.

A passer-by discovered McCauley at the waterline around noon Thursday, near the Astoria Recreation Center, according to Police Chief Brad Johnston.
