Creative Coast holds series of art talks

CANNON BEACH — The Creative Coast, a new program of Cannon Beach Arts Association, is presenting a free series of talks aimed at sharing information and experiences between artists and arts professionals. These talks are designed for artists; however, anyone with an interest in how artists make livings will enjoy this opportunity to network with the local arts community.

The series will kick off with Bonnie Lang Malcolmson at 6 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 17. Malcolmson will discuss how museums curate shows and develop collections.

During the following week's talk, attendees will be provided a basic guide to valuing and pricing artwork and assistance to help you decide if and when you may need an appraiser.

After Thanksgiving the discussions will continue with a demonstration from local photographer Don Frank as to how to best photograph artwork.

The series will conclude with a panel of gallery owners discussing business models and the varying levels of artist representation.

The talks are set at 6 p.m. Thursdays, running Nov. 17 through Dec. 15. The venue will be the Creative Coast Project Space, located in Suite 25 on the second floor of Sandpiper Square.
