Onion Peak may become part of North Coast Land
Conservancy's "Coastal Edge" vision of the coast.

Deal: If funds aren't raised, land could be returned to timber farm

Oregon, and one of the few in the world, where an entire coastal watershed is permanently conserved from the headwaters to the ocean. The purchase would mark the largest single private acquisition of land for conservation in western Oregon.

The property is part of 5,000 acres sold by Stimson, which has owned the property since 2004, to Onion Peak Holdings. The agreement gives the North Coast Land Conservancy an opportunity to arrange funds from public agencies and private donations to acquire the property in phases within the next five years.

The conservancy intends to transition the property to long-term, local, conservation-oriented ownership and management. In the interim, the property will be managed by Ecotrust Forest Management on behalf of Onion Peak Holdings.

During this period Onion Peak Holdings and the conservancy will collaborate on a management plan to return the forest to late old-growth conditions. The land will be managed with a recreation component, allowing people to enjoy the property while protecting the sensitivity of the site.

If the conservancy can't raise the funds to buy the land, there is a "high probability" that the property would be returned to an industrial timber farm.

If the sale is completed, Stimson will reinvest the funds raised from the sale in other timberlands in Oregon and other regions.

Scott Gray, Stimson's director of western resources, said in a statement that the lumber company was "compelled by the uniqueness of the property and the Coastal Edge vision and the potential long-term benefit to the public through the realization of this vision."

Trump the dealmaker keeps any Cabinet decisions under wraps

NEW YORK — Call him the dealmaker-elect.

By his own account, President-elect Donald Trump has worked out a few agreements after a parade of weekend visitors who could land major appointments in his administration.

There were hints but no decisions to announce. Mitt Romney, the Republican nominee in 2012, was "under active and serious consideration" for secretary of state, Vice President-elect Mike Pence said. Trump himself said retired Marine Corps Gen. James Mattis was an "impressive" prospect for defense secretary.

"We've made a couple of deals," Trump told reporters at his

"We've made a couple of deals," Trump told reporters at his Bedminster, New Jersey, golf club before returning to New York. He gave assurances that "incredible meetings" would be brining "incredible people" into the government. "You'll be hearing about them soon."

More meetings are on Trump's schedule. His transition team said former Texas governor and GOP presidential rival Rick Perry was expected to meet with Trump today.

Police, protesters face off at Dakota Access pipeline

CANNON BALL, N.D. — Tension flared anew on the Dakota Access pipeline as protesters tried to push past a long-blocked bridge on a state highway, only to be turned back by a line of law enforcement using water cannon and what appeared to be tear gas.

Sunday's skirmishes began around 6 p.m. after protesters removed a burned-out truck on what's known as the Backwater Bridge, not far from the encampment where they've been for weeks as they demonstrate against the pipeline. The Morton County Sheriff's Department estimated 400 protesters sought to cross the bridge on state Highway 1806.

A live stream early today showed a continued standoff, with large lights illuminating smoke wafting across the scene.

The sheriff's department said in a statement around 1 a.m. today that approximately 100 to 200 protesters were on the bridge or in the vicinity. It said law enforcement officers "had rocks thrown at them, burning logs and rocks shot from slingshots," and that one officer had been hit on the head by a thrown rock.

At least one person was arrested. Protesters said a gym in Cannon Ball was opened to aid demonstrators who were soaked on a night the temperature dipped into the low 20s or were hit with tear gas.

Fugitive fowl finally nabbed in Pittsburgh, headed to rescue

PITTSBURGH — A noisy rooster's piercing calls will no longer plague Pittsburgh.

Following several weeks on the lam, the male chicken was scooped up on Sunday afternoon by Frank Cantone, who runs a chicken rescue in St. Louis.

Cantone offered to help Henry Gaston remove the bird after he heard that Gaston was facing fines for having a rooster on his property. Roosters are banned in Pittsburgh, and neighbors told a city inspector the bird was waking them up early in the morning

Cantone failed to apprehend the fugitive fowl on Saturday when it flew up into a tree. He and his two daughters managed to trap it the following day by luring it into a corner with a hen on a harness.

Massachusetts man sues neighbor over seagull mess

WEBSTER, Mass. (AP) — A Massachusetts man sick of the mess seagulls leave at his dock and boat wants the neighbor he says is responsible for attracting the birds to pay up.

The Telegram & Gazette reports that Frank Yacino has sued Lisa Pezzella in small claims court.

Yacino lives on Webster Lake in Webster. He says Pezzella feeds the seagulls that hang around his neighborhood, leaving droppings all over his property and making it impossible to enjoy the water. He's asking for $1,500 to replace his boat's seat covers and $500 for the time he's spent pressure-washing his dock.

The town has issued a cease-and-desist order to Pezzella, based on video officials say shows her feeding gulls.

Her lawyer calls the case silly and denies his client feeds the
