

Maddox Dance Studio hosts auditions for 45th Summer Dance Lab

Local dancers can try out for intensive dance program, take a master class Jan. 7

WARRENTON — Summer Dance Lab, a pre-eminent five week intensive dance camp hosted at Whitman College in Walla Walla, Washington for pre-professional dance students, will hold its annual audition for prospective students on Saturday, Jan. 7 at Maddox Dance Studio/Little Ballet Theatre, located at 389 S. Main Ave.

Denise Dabrowski, director of the San Diego Ballet, will give a master class and judge auditions for all area dance students in the intermediate/advanced levels of ballet.

Students between 13 and 21 years of age can audition from 2 and 3:15 p.m., and students between 10 and 12 years of age can audition from 3:30 to 4:45 p.m., with registration 30 minutes prior to each audition.

The results of the audition will qualify dancers to attend the 45th annual Summer Dance Lab, to be held in late June and July 2017.

All area students are encouraged to participate in the class, as a master class for new inspiration and the benefits of experiencing the audition atmosphere.

A non-returnable picture of the student is required, along with a registration form, and $30 to Summer Dance Lab Whitman College.

Summer Dance Lab accepts serious dance students for a multi-disciplinary training program, focusing on ballet, modern and American theater dance styles. Select merit scholarships are available by audition only.

Students may attend for two, three or five weeks during the summer.

Students who attend for the full five weeks of the program may audition for the Apprentice Program, which entitles selected dancers the opportunity to work with professional choreographers and dance in a final public, professional performance in association with affiliate Walla Walla Dance Festival.

Visiting companies to the festival hail from across the country, from San Francisco to New York City, and also includes a number of outstanding guests artists both established and emerging.

Directors John Passafiume and Lydia Tetzlaff have molded Summer Dance Lab to enable students to maximize their individual potential, and to that end employ a faculty of teaching professionals that encompass all dance styles featured in today's dance world. Summer Dance Lab immerses its students in the language of dance with a rigorous pre-professional schedule, imparting valuable information that is translated into the body and taken back to their home studios or into professional auditions.

For more information, email sdl@whitman.edu, or go to www.whitman.edu/summerdance.

This is Maddox Dance Studio's 40th year of association with Summer Dance Lab. For class assignment times, call Pamela Morimoto at Maddox Dance Studio/Little Ballet Theatre at 503-861-1971.
