Tongue Point requires proof of auto insurance to enter campus

Requirement part of push to improve safety

Driving to Tongue Point Job Corps Center? Carry proof of auto insurance, or be ready to walk.

summer, Since the Tongue Point has been requiring all visitors to show proof of auto insurance to drive on campus.

Center Director Kim Shillinger said the new policy started around June and came down from Management and Training Corp., which operates Tongue Point and 22 other centers for the U.S. Department of Labor.

In his nine years with the campus, Shillinger said, Tongue Point has always had a posted policy allowing the search of vehicles and asking for proof of insurance. He said the policy is about preventing potential liability from uninsured motorists causing injury or damage on campus, but is being more stringently enforced amid a national push to improve safety at the 125 Job Corps centers nationwide. Shillinger said Tongue Point staff and U.S. Coast Guard personnel at the Aids to Navigation Team on Tongue Point are not being asked to show proof of insurance.

Safety concerns

In 2015, a student was hacked to death at a Jobs Corps center in Miami, and another shot and killed at a center in St. Louis, Missouri. The murders followed the rape of a student by a security guard at Springdale Job Corps in Troutdale, and reports of assaults and other abuse at centers in Texas.

Between 2012 2013, the Department of Labor's Office of Inspector General received numerous complaints about student misconduct going uninvestigated, making some centers unsafe. The office recommended operators strengthen and better enforce policies around student misconduct.

Shillinger said Job Corps

issued a new behavior management policy in June. Students fighting or found with drugs would have always been kicked out of Job Corps, he said, but now students who make any sort of threat toward one another will be removed as well.

That's a rule Shillinger said he has a hard time enforcing, because students sometimes get out of line. "I believe in second and third chances," he said, adding that Job Corps serves a wide cross-section of students, including those from both broken and stable homes.

Safe center

"I don't believe we're an unsafe center," Shillinger

He said Tongue Point has scoped out the cost of adding more guards, fencing around its campus and installing more cameras, but is likely at the tail end of any funding for increased

"If they stopped the funding after all the inner-city campuses, to me it wouldn't affect our program at all,' he said.

OBITUARIES

Charlotte Mae Hallaux Fearey

Astoria

Oct. 14, 1922 — Dec. 17, 2016

Charlotte Fearey

Charlotte Mae Hallaux Fearey, a longtime resident of Astoria, died at Tanner Spring Assisted Living and Memory Care in West Linn, Oregon, on Dec. 17, 2016. She was 94.

Charlotte was born Oct. 14, 1922, in Rapid City, South Dakota, to Everett N. and Ruth (Hieserman) Harrison. She grew up and graduated from high school in Rapid City. She attended the South Dakota School of Mines in Rapid City, and Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio.

During World War II, she moved with her parents to Portland and worked in the shipyards. After the war, Charlotte joined the Red Cross and helped process returning servicemen in Northern California. She then moved to San Francisco, where she worked at Children's Hospital and met her future husband, Jean Hallaux of Astoria. They were married in 1947 in San Francisco, and remained there until 1950, when they moved to Astoria. Charlotte continued to live in Astoria until Septem-

Charlotte worked as a clerk at the J.C. Pennev store, as a bookkeeper for Columbia Oil Co. and also at Hallaux Paint Store, the family business. Charlotte was an avid walker and she could often be seen walking to and from work. She and Jean raised three children, Roxanna (Roxy), James (Jim) and Annette. They were married for 44 years, until Jean's death in 1991.

After Jean's death, Charlotte remained in the family home. She was grateful for the support of her widow's group. She often traveled with members of the group. She also traveled to visit her children and grandchildren. In 2004, she married an old family friend, Ed Fearey. The Feareys were married for 10 years, until Ed's death in 2014.

Charlotte was known by many in Astoria because of her volunteer work in the community. She was a loyal and active member of Astoria Christian Church. She also was active in the Lioness Club for many years. She participated in Anchors, a women's organization that supported the Regatta.

She volunteered in the following organizations related to her children's activities: Girl Scouts, Job's Daughters and the American Field Service. In retirement, she was a docent for the Flavel House Museum, served at Loaves and Fishes and worked once a week for the Clatsop Emergency Food Bank. She served on the boards of the Pioneer House, which served homeless families. and the Clatsop County Women's Resource Center.

Charlotte was also very devoted to her family. Over the years, she made many trips to visit her mother and her sister's family in Aberdeen, Washington. Along with her husband, Jean, she spent many vacations taking her in-laws, Catherine and Hayes Hallaux, to visit relatives in California. In addition, Charlotte provided in home care for Catherine prior to Catherine's

The family would like to thank the staff of Clatsop Retirement Village and Tanner Springs for the care they provided for Charlotte, and also the kindness they showed to her and the family.

Surviving are two daughters, Roxanna (Bob) Benning of Oak Ridge, Tennessee, and Annette (Aubrey Compton) Hallaux of Portland; one son, James (Robbie Mattson) of Tigard; seven grandchildren, Jonathan Halleaux, Joseph Hallaux, Ashlie (Scott) Crouch, Katherine (Owen) Glanz, Thomas (Elena) Benning and Matthew and Liam Compton; five great grandchildren, Will (Olivia) and Bailey Crouch, Finn Hallaux, Samantha Bell and Amber Langley Bell-Halleaux; and two nephews, Doyle and Paul (Judy)

A private interment service will be held at Ocean View Cemetery on Jan. 14. A memorial service will be held at Astoria Christian Church at 1:30 p.m. on Jan. 14.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Astoria Christian Church, Clatsop Emergency Food Bank, Habitat for Humanity or a charity of your choice.

Ex-Philomath football coach pleads no contest in hazing case

Associated Press

CORVALLIS — A 22-yearformer volunteer football coach at Philomath High School has entered a no-contest plea in connection to a hazing incident.

The Corvallis Gazette-Times reported that Cooper Kikuta on Thursday pleaded charge of criminal mistreatment and was sentenced to 60 hours of community service at the Children's Farm Home and 12 months probation.

no contest to the misdemeanor

The former assistant volunteer coach is charged along with senior members of the football team for a July hazing initiation in which 11 freshmen had intimate parts of their bodies targeted at a summer training camp in Warrenton.

Prosecutors argue Kikuta didn't provide adequate care for the players who were under his supervision.

The juveniles cited in the case have admitted to the allegations against them.
