

OBITUARIES

Jerry E. Davis

Astoria

Dec. 5, 1935 — March 7, 2017

A loving husband, father and friend, Jerry Davis passed away at home surrounded by his family. He was a man of faith and heart and humor.

He could be seen around town walking hand in hand with his wife, riding the bus, playing bocce or talking with a friend. He could often be found at his desk, writing letters, designing envelopes, enclosing articles — all matched to the interests of his hundreds of recipients — people he had known for 70 years, or had just met. Everyone was equal in Jerry's heart.

Born in Port Townsend, Washington, he was the son of Elmer Davis and Kathleen Harker Davis. He bounced around a bit before landing in Mount Angel, Oregon, where he attended Mount Angel Seminary High School.

In 1955, he made his profession at the monastery, where he took the name Brother John. At the Abbey he tended the grounds and the animals, and eventually moved to the print shop, which prepared him for his future work at The Daily Astorian.

Later, at Star of the Sea Parish and School, Jerry began in custodial and maintenance work, where soon his knack for squirreling things away led to a great collection of treasures, and highlighted his belief in sharing, renewing and making things available to anyone in need. In 2006, the liquidation of his 40 years' of collections became known as the "Sale of the Century," and preceded his retirement.

He is survived by his wife of nearly 49 years, Sharon Davis; his children, Marco, Ken (Kevin), Steven, Lisa and Emily; his grandchildren, Ventell, Julia, Anna, Ava and Hayden; as well as brothers, John Davis and Neil Willestoff; sister-in-law, Teresa Williamson; and numerous nieces and nephews.

The funeral mass will be held on March 13 at 11 a.m., preceded by the rosary at 10:30 a.m., at St. Mary, Star of the Sea Catholic Church, at 15th Street and Grand Avenue in Astoria, Oregon.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to St. Mary's Memorial Fund, Astoria Warming Center, St. Mary's Choir Trip to Barcelona, or to the charity of your choice.

Thank you to Lower Columbia Hospice, Dr. Law and the numerous people who supported and cared for Jerry and his family.

of Beta Sigma Phi, Home Extension and was a 4-H garden club leader. She also enjoyed gardening, sewing, garage sales and traveling to such locations as Nepal, Tibet, Egypt, China, Italy, Greece and Germany.

Tour a Coast Guard cutter in Astoria

The Daily Astorian

The U.S. Coast Guard will hold public tours Sunday aboard the agency's newest fast response cutter, the John F. McCormick, at the 17th Street Dock in Astoria.

The 154-foot Sentinel-class cutter is named after McCormick, who served as the officer in charge for the motor lifeboat Triumph, stationed in Hammond. McCormick was awarded the Gold Lifesaving Medal for rescuing fellow crew member Robert O. Bracken, who fell overboard while attempting to assist the tug Tyee on the Columbia River on March 26, 1938.

Judge grants Oregon's request to join the travel ban lawsuit

By PARIS ACHEN
Capital Bureau

SALEM — A federal judge has granted Oregon's request to join Washington's lawsuit challenging President Donald Trump's first travel ban on citizens of seven predominantly Muslim countries.

Since a federal appeals court affirmed a restraining order on the ban, Trump has issued a second executive order banning citizens of six Muslim-majority countries for 90 days and all refugees for 120 days. The new travel ban has already drawn a separate legal challenge from Hawaii. A federal judge in that state has agreed to hear Hawaii's request for a temporary restraining order on Wednesday.

"I am pleased that several state attorneys general are combining our resources to continue to fight the president's attempt to fulfill a campaign promise of banning Muslims from entering the United States," said Oregon Attorney General Ellen Rosenblum in a statement Thursday. "Though repackaged, the president's revised executive order has the same discriminatory intent as the first one."

Washington Attorney General Bob Ferguson announced that he will amend the lawsuit early next week to include Oregon, New York and possibly other states.

"The president lost the first round in court. We will continue to assert the Constitution and the rule of law in arguing that his second attempt is seriously flawed and should join its sister executive order in the trash bin of history."

Trump's first executive order, signed in January, indefinitely banned Syrian refugees and temporarily blocked other refugees and citizens of seven majority-Muslim countries from entering the United States. The order came after Trump promised during his campaign a "total and complete shutdown of Muslims entering the United States," according to court records.

Federal Judge James Robart in Seattle in February temporarily halted enforcement of the order nationwide after Washington Attorney General Ferguson argued that the order would harm his state's interests. The state's lawsuit also claims the order is unconstitutional because it discriminates on the basis of religion. The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals unanimously upheld Robart's temporary restraining order.

Governor's staff lobbies treasurer on Elliott Forest

By CLAIRE WITHYCOMBE
Capital Bureau

SALEM — Gov. Kate Brown's staff met with members of the Treasurer's Office Wednesday as part of the governor's efforts to get traction for her plan to avoid selling the Elliott State Forest.

About 82,500 acres of the forest in Coos and Douglas counties is up for sale to a private partnership between a timber company, Lone Rock Resources, and the Cow Creek Band of Umpqua Tribe of Indians.

The land is currently required to provide revenues for the Common School Fund, which is basically an endowment for public education.

Treasurer Tobias Read and Secretary of State Dennis Richardson serve alongside the governor as part of the State Land Board, the governing body for Common School Fund trust lands such as the Elliott. Read and Richardson voted in favor of continuing with the privatization proposal last month.

The governor has proposed an alternative using the state's bond capacity to pay for a portion of the forest, which would require approval by the Legislature.

Brown cannot lobby either Read or Richardson directly because their meeting on board business would constitute a quorum of the board, and would be subject to the state's open meetings law.

Brown told reporters at a press conference Wednesday that she was hopeful her office could put together a public ownership plan for the Elliott State Forest that a majority of state legislators would approve.
