

Welding to find a cure for cancer.

Paid for by the Pharmaceutical Industry Labor-Management Association (PILMA)

America's patients rely on members of the International Association of Bridge, Structural, Ornamental and Reinforcing Iron Workers to build the biopharmaceutical facilities that will be home to the next generation of cures.

PILMA's labor unions and biopharmaceutical company members oppose so-called transparency and price control legislation because these policies diminish incentives to discover life-saving medicines and reduce investment in capital construction projects that put our members to work.

Call and let your representatives know you oppose transparency and price control legislation that puts Oregon jobs at risk and hurts the economy.
