Arts groups vie for piece of pie

New reporting tool developed in tourism fund

By BRENNA VISSER The Daily Astorian

CANNON BEACH — Starting next year, the Tourism and Arts Commission will phase in a new budget reporting tool to help standardize the data kept after festivals and events funded by grants.

Nine local groups and associations have applications in the midyear evaluation stage to receive a piece of more than $250,000 in grant funding from the commission to fund many of Cannon Beach's festivals, programs and promotion. The purpose of the Tourism and Arts Commission is to see that expenditures from the funds are used to attract tourists through efforts directly related to marketing and enhancing the arts, according to the group's guidelines.

Three groups — Cannon Beach History Center, Friends of Haystack Rock Awareness Program and the North Coast Land Conservancy's Coast Walk — had

Steve Sinkler, the owner of The Wine Shack and the tourism commission's newest member, designed the reporting tool after observing a lack of consistency in how groups reported data related to the events and programs each seek to fund. This new tool will ask these groups to provide the number of attendees, how many are returnees and how many came from 50 miles outside of Cannon Beach — a number that is required to be reported for consideration. Numbers will be supplied in a spreadsheet for evaluation.

'What we're trying to do is promote Cannon Beach from outside the local area." he said.

This system would also have a standardized way of reporting how much funding groups have received, how much was spent in public relations and advertising, the average number of days an attendee stayed for their event or program, and the average "total spend" of their attendees.

The "total spend" of an attendee is an estimated amount of money each tourist spends on a room, meals and other vacation expenses. An average for Clatsop County is calculated each vear by the Oregon Travel Impacts study.

'The inconsistency makes it difficult for the committee to go in and find these numbers, put pieces together to try and put calculation for those numbers," Sinkler said. "This should make it easier. It's also easier for grant submitters, because we're taking that, 'How do I format this?' question off their plate."

At this point the tool is not mandated for applicants, and the plan is to try it out for a year and reevaluate. Sinkler said the commission realizes it's primarily an event-based tool, which means applicants can still include other metrics that might be more important to their specific request.

"It's not a one size fits all," he said. "But it gives us a consistent benchmark to evaluate."

Sinkler said he hopes having organizations keep this type of data will help grant applicants make decisions about their own programs to identify points of strength and improvement, as well.

OBITUARIES

Francis 'Frank' Bojanowski Vancouver, Washington April 30, 1947 — March 28, 2017

Just short of his 70th birthday, Frank Bojanowski died peacefully in the company of loving family members on Tuesday, March 28, 2017, in Vancouver, Washington. While a possible stroke may have contributed, Frank likely took some satisfaction in going out confounding his

Frank was born a second generation Polish-American in Detroit, Michigan. He grew up there with his older brother, Earle Bojanowski, as well as his now-deceased brother Conrad, mother Clara, father Francis, and paternal grandmother Otiliya. His sister-in-law, Eileen, and two nephews, David and Paul Bojanowski, live in the Detroit area, as well.

After leaving Detroit to serve in the U.S. Navy during the Vietnam War, Frank settled in California, where he parlayed his naval corpsman skills into becoming a respiratory therapist for many years, including at Columbia Memorial Hospital in Astoria, Oregon. His next career was in HVAC, and he owned a business in Astoria, and worked for many years at Eastside Heating and Air Conditioning in Portland. His most recent career was in facilities management, working for the International School in Portland, and previously for St. James Cathedral in Vancouver, through which Frank was also a member of the Knights of Columbus. During his time in California, Frank met his first wife, Sherry. The couple had two daughters, Jennifer and Melanie, and eventually moved to the Pacific Northwest. Through Melanie and her husband Roger, Frank was fortunate to have a grandson, John, and granddaughter, Sherry. After the loss of his first wife, Frank met his wife Leslie, with whom he had been for 28 years. The couple had a son, Michael, and a daughter, Dayna, and settled in Vancouver, Washington.

Friends and family are invited to the following:

A viewing is being held from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today at Hamilton-Mylan Funeral Home, 302 W. 11th St., Vancouver, Washington.

On Tuesday, April 4, 2017, funeral services are being held at St. James Cathedral, 218 W. 12th St., Vancouver, Washington. A rosary is at 8:20 a.m.; Mass is at 9 a.m.; and a luncheon and eulogy start at 10 a.m.

A graveside service is at 1 p.m. Wednesday, April 5, 2017, at Ocean View Cemetery, Fort Stevens Highway Spur in Warrenton, Oregon.
