Bilingual theater arts program gets funding

The Oregon Arts Commission, recently awarded 36 Arts Build Community grants, totaling $210,400, including $6,000 to the Miracle Theatre Group of Astoria. The grant will support Milagro's UNIDAD, a bilingual arts and science residency program, with workshops and a public performance of the play "El Payaso." The residency involves local students in discussing environmental issues facing the Latino population. Grant funds support teaching artists and related travel expenses.

Now in its 21st year, the Arts Build Communities program targets broad geographic impact and arts access for underserved audiences. Arts Build Communities grants frequently serve as seed money to spur additional local support, and are made possible through partnership funding from the National Endowment for the Arts.
