ASTORIA BRANCH OF AAUW TURNS 90, HOLDS SPECIAL EVENT

ASTORIA — The American Association of University Women Astoria Branch is celebrating its 90th anniversary 7 p.m. Tuesday, May 23, at the Clatsop County Historical Society's Heritage Museum (1618 Exchange St.). The public is invited to attend, and refreshments will be served.

During the event, branch members will highlight the group's achievements over the past 90 years. For the occasion, they will be wearing apparel that represents each decade. An exhibition of gowns, memorabilia and photographs will be on display, organizers said.

The Astoria Branch held its first meeting May 12, 1927, and — except during World War II — the group has been meeting continuously to the present day.

The branch's accomplishments include hosting state association conventions, granting scholarships, aiding the library, establishing kindergartens and history classes in state schools, researching and honoring women during Astoria's Bicentennial, and co-sponsoring (with AAUW Seaside) Clatsop Community College's popular Women Interested in Going to School (WINGS) program, Pamela Alegria, a co-organizer and branch board member, said in a release.

The group's annual fundraising event, Readers Dessert Theater, and the candidates' forum are staples of the community.

For more information, call Sara Meyer at 503-325-7969.

A night of pasta and jazz supports Astoria Band Boosters

ASTORIA — The Astoria Moose Lodge 408, Chapter 422, is hosting a spaghetti feed 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday, May 20, to support the Astoria Band Boosters.

At the lodge (420 17th St.), eaters will enjoy a "heaping plate of spaghetti, salad and bread," organizers said. "While you're stuffing your faces with pasta, you will be delightfully entertained by the Astoria High School Jazz Band."

The price is $10 for adults, $5 for kids 6 to 17. Proceeds go to the Astoria Band Boosters, a nonprofit organization devoted to supporting the programs and activities of Astoria School District bands, and to promoting music and fine arts appreciation and education throughout Clatsop County communities and surrounding areas, according to press materials.
