Budget for Astoria schools contains slight increase

The Daily Astorian

The Astoria School Board on Wednesday adopted an $18.6 million operating budget for the 2017-18 school year, a nearly $600,000 increase from the current year.

Much of the budget is dependent on how much funding the state Legislature would provide for K-12 education. Astoria budgeted based on $8 billion in K-12 funding from state legislators, which have advanced $8.2 billion in proposed funding.

Superintendent Craig Hoppes said the district has also estimated a minimum of $400 per student from Measure 98. The voter-approved initiative was supposed to provide about $800 per student to support career-technical programs, early college credit opportunities and drop-out prevention. But the Legislature has the power to dictate funding, and the measure has faced uncertainty amid the state's budget woes. Hoppes said the district is confident in the $400-per-student funding floor.

Astoria's budget assumes a student enrollment of 1,825 and staffing level of 185 full-time equivalents, both the same as this year. The district is planning to hire a social worker, a need identified in a staff review of the district's mental health services. The funding for the new position would come from Measure 98 proceeds.

"As we move forward now and with future fiscal development, we will strive to maintain quality programs to help ensure students graduating from the Astoria School District are prepared for the workforce and higher education opportunities," Hoppes said in his budget message. "I am continually appreciative of the support, participation and viable solutions provided by the community, district staff and school board members."

Official says more Hanford nuke mishaps likely to happen

By NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
 Associated Press

RICHLAND, Wash. — Future accidental radiation releases at the largest U.S. site of waste from nuclear weapons production are likely following back-to-back emergency evacuations of workers in May and June because aging infrastructure is breaking down, the top Energy Department official at the site told The Associated Press.

ON THE RECORD
