Coast Weekend hiring freelancers

By ERICK BENDEL
COAST WEEKEND

Coast Weekend is hiring freelancers to write one to three stories per month and help paint the arts-and-entertainment landscape of the Columbia-Pacific region.

We're looking for writers who can blend dispassionate reporting with a lively feature style to produce stories that are tight, clean and colorful. Let us know if you prefer to craft a story over several weeks and if you are available to turn around a story in a few days.

Selected applicants will get experience interviewing sources, gathering information, working with an editor, generating clippings and having a byline.

Though Coast Weekend focuses primarily on previewing events (rather than covering them), many stories also highlight interesting personalities and ongoing projects, such as art exhibitions.

Please send work samples to editor@coastweekend.com. (Submissions should not have been significantly worked over by an editor beforehand.)

Run On Sentence plays the Sou'wester

SEAVIEW — Run On Sentence, a band formed in Portland in 2007, will be performing at the Sou'wester Lodge (3728 J Place, Seaview, Washington) 8 to 10 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 27. The event is free and open to the public.

Based on the songs of Dustin Hamman, Run On Sentence involves a rotating cast of musicians but the core duo is Hamman (guitar and vocals) and Dan Galucki (drums).

Though the lineup shifts frequently, Hamman is always front and center, sharing his blend of intimate lyrics and dynamic musical amalgamations, often consisting of elements of soul, folk, psych, rock and country, according to press materials.

Over the years, Run On Sentence has shared members with Portland bands like Loch Lomond, The Builders and The Butchers, Laura Gibson and Wooden Indian Burial Ground. They've also shared the stage with some of their favorite national artists, such as Rodriguez and Vic Chesnutt.
