

Hootenanny highlights local musicians at Coaster Theatre

CANNON BEACH — The Coaster Theatre Playhouse presents an evening of music and merriment 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 26, with the Cannon Beach Hootenanny.

The evening will showcase local musicians Adams & Costello, Floating Glass Balls, Maggie and the Katz and Thistle and Rose, blending folk, blues and a little bit of rock and roll.

Tickets are $15 and can be purchased at coastertheatre.com, or by calling the theater box office at 503-436-1242.

Adams & Costello features Julie Adams and Michael Costello in a synergistic guitar and vocal duo.

The Floating Glass Balls

can be found adding rich harmonies to the atmosphere at Bill's Tavern most Thursday nights. Guitarist Joel Marshal and fiddler Gary Keiski, both original members of the band, are joined by Dave Quinton on upright bass and Brad Griswold on banjo, bringing songs spanning the northern hemisphere stretching between Poor Valley and El Paso.

Maggie and the Katz formed five years ago creating a New Orleans-spiced gumbo of eclectic, bluesy, soulful, R&B tunes with a Lagniappe of originals. Joining Maggie is songwriter, vocalist and guitarist Richard Thomasian, who brings 40 years of experience as a musician, along with bass player Dave Quinton, who has performed with many Northwest groups and currently plays bass with the Floating Glass Balls.

Thistle and Rose is little bit of The Drifters and Peter, Paul & Mary, with a hint of Dylan and Joan Baez, and a pinch of Lightfoot and Judy Collins, plus a dab of Garcia, spiced up with some hot-lick Bobcat blues and some original songs that are honest and thought-provoking. Two guitars and four voices in harmony solidly ground the band and support the participation of the audience as they play songs from back in the day and invite you to join along.
