Kent D. Walsh, left, and his wife, Madeline Walsh, with their pink seagull

41 years in real estate, the last 13 working for ReMax. Walsh retired three years ago and relocated to Seaview.

More than 25 years ago, he and Madeline took a trip to the Long Beach Peninsula that would change their lives.

"We love the beach, so we took a trip to the peninsula," Walsh said, "but it just so happened to be a holiday weekend, and we couldn't find a hotel room anywhere. We looked on the Oregon side, down in Ocean Park and almost to Lincoln City. I told my wife, 'I'm not coming back down here until we have a place of our own.'"

Madeline joked: "Our only requirement is that we wanted something better than a tent."

The Walshes purchased a property and spent the next three decades slowly fixing it up during their free time while still living in Vancouver. Now it's their full-time home.

"It's not a big house, but it's cute," Walsh said. "We have a white picket fence all around it, and a pink seagull in the front yard — a character from one of my books called 'In Search of the Pink Seagull.'"

"The Little Spotted Frog" can be found online through Amazon and at Adelaide's Books.
