

HORROR IN LAS VEGAS

At least 58 killed in deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history

By SALLY HO
and REGINA GARCIA CANO
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — A gunman perched on the 32nd floor of a Las Vegas hotel-casino unleashed a hail of bullets on an outdoor country music festival below, killing at least 58 people as tens of thousands of concertgoers screamed and ran for their lives, officials said Monday. It was the deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history. At least 515 others were injured in the Sunday night attack, authorities said. SWAT teams using explosives stormed the gunman's hotel room in the sleek, gold-colored

See SHOOTING, Page 5A

Las Vegas police sweep through a convention center area during a lockdown Monday at the Tropicana Las Vegas following an active shooter situation on the Las Vegas Strip.

Chase Stevens/Las Vegas Review-Journal

A DOWNTOWN HUB GETS A FACELIFT

Grant support helps brighten the Riviera

By EDWARD STRATTON
The Daily Astorian

In 1997, Uriah Hulsey and Jeanine Fairchild purchased the 72-year-old Riviera Building, one of the first movie houses built after a devastating fire destroyed much of Astoria in 1922.

Over the years, the building has become a hub downtown with the Columbian Theater, Voodoo Room and Columbian Cafe.

And with an infusion of grant money from the Oregon Heritage Commission, the building is being restored to its historic glory.

Fairchild and Hulsey first became tenants of former Riviera owner Ron Brott in 1980, when Hulsey took over operation of the Columbian Cafe. In 1997, the building went up for sale.

"I didn't want to move, so we formed a little LLC and bought the building," Hulsey said.

They operated the Columbian Theater and turned a smaller screening

Colin Murphey/The Daily Astorian

Pedestrians walk by the construction site at the Riviera Building in downtown Astoria. The historic building is undergoing work to restore the facade.

room in front into the eclectic Voodoo Room. Over the years, they had largely done patchwork on the building, until being approached recently by Sarah Lu Heath, director of the Astoria Downtown Historic District Association, with an opportunity to do something bigger.

"It's a great landmark building, with owners that were operating really good businesses," Heath said of the Riviera. "The building just needed some help."

See RIVIERA, Page 7A

The present-day Columbian Theater originally opened June 2, 1925, as the Riviera Theater. A restoration is bringing back the facade of the Riviera Building, designed by architect Charles T. Diamond in a Mediterranean Revival style. Clatsop County Historical Society

Retired printer leaves lasting mark

Grimm has seen dramatic changes in print industry

By JACK HEFFERNAN
The Daily Astorian

After a 50-year printing career involving dramatic changes in the industry, a longtime Astorian is putting his work to bed.

Tom Grimm, who worked for EO Media Group based in Astoria for 41 years, retired from the company last week. He announced his retirement in July and has since been closing out his small print shop in The Daily Astorian building.

"I just figured it was time," Grimm said. "It's a long two-week notice."

Grimm, 69, graduated from Benson Tech High School in Portland, where his first glimpse at the profession came when he took shop classes in printing and photography.

After his 1967 graduation, Grimm worked for

See GRIMM, Page 7A

Submitted Photo

Tom Grimm retired from EO Media Group after 41 years.

Courageous World War II paratrooper dies at 96

Astoria man featured in 'Band of Brothers'

Associated Press and The Daily Astorian

SALEM — Donald Malarkey, a World War II paratrooper who was awarded the Bronze Star after parachuting behind enemy lines at Normandy to destroy German artillery on D-Day, has died. He was 96.

Malarkey, who was born in Astoria, was one of several members of "Easy Company" to be widely portrayed in the HBO miniseries, "Band of Brothers." He died Saturday in Salem of age-related causes, his son-in-law John Hill said Sunday.

Malarkey fought across France, the Netherlands and Belgium and with Easy Company fought off Nazi advances while surrounded at Bastogne during the Battle of the Bulge in December 1944.

He was often praised for his actions during the war, and was presented with the Legion of Honor Medal — the highest honor awarded by the French government — in 2009.

See MALARKEY, Page 7A

Donald Malarkey

Out-of-control driver kills one in Seaside crash

SUV rams into bus stop

By BRENNA VISSER
The Daily Astorian

SEASIDE — One man was killed and another person was critically injured after the driver of a Dodge Durango traveling northbound on U.S. Highway 101 crashed into a bus stop shelter outside McDonald's restaurant in Seaside Saturday night.

The accident occurred about 9:50 p.m., according to Oregon State Police Sgt. DeAnn Rzewnicki. The driver sustained minor injuries and was sent to Columbia Memorial Hospital in Astoria. The critically injured pedestrian was sent to a Portland hospital.

The man killed in the crash has not been publicly identified.

See CRASH, Page 7A

Erick Bengel/The Daily Astorian

One person was killed and two injured after a Dodge Durango drove into a bus stop shelter in Seaside Saturday night.

