

WELCOME TO THE NEW CANCER CENTER

Helen Keller once said, "Alone we can do so little; together we can do so much." What began as a joint initiative to develop a clinical program focused on cancer treatment in 2010 has quickly transformed into an innovative, rural/academic medical center collaboration, bringing world-class cancer care to our region, and great hope for thousands whose lives have been touched by cancer.

The CMH-OHSU Knight Cancer Collaborative officially opened its doors Oct. 2, 2017, and we are eager to welcome our community in to discover the next genesis of healthcare here in Astoria, where patient-centered care meets medical excellence.

As you walk through the doors of the new facility, you will immediately feel the commitment, the heart and hard work that went into this enormously rewarding project.

As you walk through the doors of the new facility, you will immediately feel the commitment, the heart and hard work that went into this enormously rewarding project. During every phase of planning, design, and building, hundreds of our CMH caregivers, an incredible visionary team from OHSU, courageous patients, generous donors, selfless community leaders, volunteers, artists, and craftspeople, gave of themselves in innumerable ways.

The culmination of this work, ingenuity, and service created a space that offers highly advanced, comprehensive cancer treatment, in an environment that provides patients and their care partners with tranquility, comfort, unsurpassed hospitality, service and compassion.

It is with great pleasure and gratitude that I invite you to attend a community open house to tour the CMH-OHSU Knight Cancer Collaborative and become familiar with the level of cancer care available closer to the place you call home.
