

So much wining in Downtown Seaside

SEASIDE — The Seaside Downtown Development Association presents the Seaside Downtown Fall Wine Walk 3 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 11. More than twenty Oregon wineries will showcase their best wines in beautiful downtown Seaside and its businesses.

There will also be complimentary appetizers. Approximately 850 attendees enjoy this biannual event.

A commemorative event wine glass ($15) and ID bracelet will be required for wine tasting. Participants must be 21 or older. Wineries will be charging nominal tasting fees.

A map listing the participating wineries and businesses will be available on social media and at the three ID check stations.

Information and discounted pre-sale tickets ($10) are available at seasidedowntown.com/winewalk.

Wine glass sales and ID check stations will be open event day for sales as follows.

Wine glasses and ID bracelets can be purchased at the Seaside Carousel Mall (300 Broadway St.) 1 to 6 p.m. (two stations), and at the Seaside Downtown

During Art Walk, music 'fun' raiser at Gulley's

ASTORIA — Gulley's Butcher Shop is hosting a "fun" raiser during the Astoria Art Walk. We will be collecting donations for the Astoria Rescue Mission.

We will have live music with Ken and DeLores

Richards, well-known local musicians. Ken and De will be performing country swing, so get your cowboy boots on!

There will be appetizers, beverages and a great time to be had by all.

DO YOU KNOW THE MUSHROOM MAN?

ILWACO, WASH. — Salty Talks presents an evening of conversation with Oregon Park Ranger Dane Osis 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 16, at Ilwaco's Salt Hotel & Pub (147 Howerton Ave.) on the Ilwaco waterfront. The free event, held upstairs, is open to the public.

An amazing variety of fungi thrive in the coastal Pacific Northwest. Join Osis for a program on these wild forest mushrooms. This illustrated talk will cover what fungi are, their role in the forest and identification tips for both edible and poisonous species. Feel free to bring in samples of mushrooms for identification.

Osis works at Fort Stevens State Park. After gaining a foundation in mushroom identification through several college courses, Dane commercially picked mushrooms in the Siskiyou and Deschutes National Forests. He has been teaching mushroom identification for the past 14 years at Fort Stevens

State Park and has shared similar training at several Oregon State Parks and the Tillamook Forestry Center.

Come early or stay late for those wanting to grab dinner or beverages. Seating is limited; no reservations.

Salty Talks are held in partnership with the Salt Hotel & Pub, Columbia Pacific Heritage Museum, and Washington State Parks and Recreation Commission, with support from Friends of Columbia River Gateway.
