

Cheap whiskey, dirty jokes at Labor Temple

ASTORIA — The Labor Temple Diner & Bar will begin featuring a monthly stand-up comedy show with rotating hosts, top comics from the Pacific Northwest, and drink specials.

At 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 19, will be “Cheap Whiskey and Dirty Jokes” with host Gideon F. For-Mukwai, Carter Anderson and LaciLaci Day.

The cost is $5. Only people 21 and older with a valid ID may attend.

For-mukwai, a Seaside comedian and storyteller, selected Anderson and Day as this month’s featured comics.

Anderson is a Portland-based comedian from San Antonio. He opened for comics like Last Comic Standing’s Shane Torres and Carlos Valencia before moving to Portland in 2015. He is seen throughout the Pacific Northwest, including recent shows at Helium Comedy Club and New Con PDX 6.

Day, an Oregon native, has been committing comedy since 2014. Her likability and charm are rivaled only by her ability to take any subject matter and turn it into hilarious material that all audiences can relate to. She recently appeared at Harvey Comedy club in Portland and the Capitol City Theater in Salem.

The Labor Temple is located at 934 Duane St.
