Carve out time for a new hobby

ASTORIA — The Columbia River Maritime Museum will host an introduction to wood carving with instructor Jim Bergeron 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Feb. 16, and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 17 and 18.

This class will cover basic skills for novices. Participants will be furnished with carving tools and wood plaques and shown basic carving techniques. Learn how to handle tools safely, how to lay out basic designs and how to carve desired shapes.

The class is $40 for members, $65 for nonmembers.

Bruce Jones recounts disasters at sea

ASTORIA — Capt. Bruce Jones, the final speaker in the Columbia River Maritime Museum's Past to Present lecture series, will give a presentation, "Disaster at Sea: True Tales of Shipwrecks from the Perspectives of Survivors, Rescuers and Investigators," 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Feb. 20.

The sinking of the U.S. freighter El Faro in October 2015, which resulted in the loss of 33 lives, was the worst U.S. maritime disaster in 30 years. Jones will explore how this and several other disasters, including the loss of the tall ship Bounty in October 2012, occurred despite the availability of technological advantages mariners of earlier generations could only dream of. He will also recount several dramatic Coast Guard rescues at sea.

Jones, the museum deputy director and an Astoria city councilor, retired from a 30-year Coast Guard career as commander of Sector Columbia River in 2014.

The lecture series is free with paid admission and always free for museum members.
