3D 'Aircraft Carrier' now showing at Maritime Museum

ASTORIA — "Aircraft Carrier: City at Sea," a 20-minute 3-D film, is now showing at the Columbia River Maritime Museum.

The mission to protect and defend the world's oceans has become far more complex and challenging in recent years, and naval aviation has become increasingly vital to success.

One of the greatest engineering feats in history, the modern U.S. nuclear carrier, is a masterpiece of technology and the flagship of the fleet.

With Rim of the Pacific Exercise, the world's largest and most comprehensive international maritime training exercise, find yourself aboard the carrier alongside the 5,000 highly skilled sea and air personnel conducting flight operations in the midst of the simulated war exercises taking place there.

Rarely has there been a topic so visually suited and compelling for IMAX and other giant-screen theaters.

"Aircraft Carrier" plays on the hour, starting at 10 a.m. The last show is at 4 p.m. 3D films are included with museum membership.

A night of pop rock at the Armory

ASTORIA — The Armory Skatepark welcomes experimental pop musician Briana Marela, the textural layers of Ever Ending Kicks and indie rockers Flying Fish Cove 9 p.m. Thursday, April 5.

Admission is $5 for this all-ages show. The Skatepark is located at Duane and 17th streets in Astoria. The show will be held downstairs from the roller skating rink.

Marela, after recording 2015's "All Around Us" in Reykjavik with Sigur Rós producer Alex Somers, released a new album in August 2017. "Call It Love" is punchier, pop-ier and lyrically centered around the theme of love.

Ever Ending Kicks, a project sourced from the creative inklings of Paul Benson of Anacortes, Washington, is an ear-pleasing, lyrically honest experimental pop band. The band's recent release "Music Music" has been described as warm, ear-candy pop with lyrics that discuss uncomfortable truths.

Ever Ending Kicks

Flying Fish Cove is new to the Seattle scene; their debut EP was released last summer. Jangly guitars, personal lyrics and tender moments characterize their satisfying indie rock.

Kids' theater camp accepting applications

TILLAMOOK — The Tillamook Association for the Performing Arts will hold their annual summer theater camp for students ages 11 to 14 the week of June 18, with performances June 22 and 23. There are spots for 13 students. Registration forms are due Sunday, April 1.

Forms are accepted on a first come, first served basis, and space is limited. Mail your form in soon to secure your student's spot.

This year's Starlite Theater Camp will be directed by Diane Cross, a TAPA board member. Students in the camp will attend a variety of theater classes and work on preparing this year's show.

The cost is $25 per student. Registration forms can be found at TAPA's tillamooktheater.com, or by emailing info@tillamooktheater.com.
