Contra dance the night away

ASTORIA — The next third Friday Contra Dance is April 20 at the Astoria Arts & Movement Center (Commercial and 10th streets).

Come dance to live music from the Clatsop

County Stringband. The dance starts at 7 p.m. with a beginners' lesson taught by caller Dave Ambrose. All ages are welcome and no experience is necessary to have an evening of fun.

Bring a partner or come by yourself. Contra dancing is made for meeting new friends.

Entrance is $5 to $10 depending on your budget. Children under 12 are admitted free.

Cheap whiskey, dirty jokes at Labor Temple

ASTORIA — Cheap whiskey and dirty jokes return to the Labor Temple Diner & Bar 8 p.m. Friday, April 20. The cover is $5. Only people 21 and older may attend.

A monthly stand-up comedy event featuring the best comics of the Pacific Northwest, this month's event is hosted by Andie Main and features Nariko Ott and Corina Lucas.

Main is a Portland comedian who keeps busy producing and hosting the Doug Fir Lounge's summer series The Cool Kids Patio Show, and with a politically themed series, "Revolution Comedy," which organizes fundraisers for progressive causes like Planned Parenthood, the ACLU and Don't Shoot PDX. Her efforts have contributed more than $10,000 to #theresistance.

Her festival credits include The Comedy

Exposition, repeated appearances at SF Sketchfest and The All Jane Comedy Festival, Bumbershoot, Seattle Sketchfest, Portland Pride, Treefort Festival and Cromfest.

In her spare time she enjoys taking hikes with her not-so-smart dog, pizza, making weird art, nature documentaries and yelling about the patriarchy.

Ott — the winner of the Portland's Funniest Person Contest 2016 and named one of SplitSider Magazine's "Top Up and Coming Comedians" in 2015 — is a name you won't forget. He's been accepted into the Seattle International Comedy Competition, the Bridgetown Comedy Festival, The Beast Village Comedy Festival and the Idaho Laugh Fest. Ott frequently performs at Helium Comedy Club and clubs all over. He was the host of "No Pun Intendo" at Ground Kontrol in Portland, and the Willamette Week named Ott as a member of their "Funniest Five."
