eral steps toward the officer. When the other officers arrived, they convinced Yawgel to throw the knife into a swamp behind him.

Yawgel then allegedly refused police orders to get on the ground, and police used a stun gun to subdue him. Once Yawgel was on the ground, he allegedly began flailing and holding his arms tight to his body.

"Several focused blows to Justin's body and head had to be applied before he would comply," according to a court filing.

After eventually being taken into custody, Yawgel was provided medical treatment. He has been charged with unlawful use of a weapon, first-degree criminal mischief, resisting arrest, menacing and interfering with a police officer. Bail was set at $25,000 Monday, and he is scheduled for an arraignment hearing in May.

Yawgel was also arrested in February for allegedly assaulting his mother.

Long Beach Police Chief Flint Wright gathered up crime-scene tape at about 7:45 p.m. Monday after a stabbing that occurred near the corner of Second Avenue and Lake Street in Ilwaco.

During the course of the ensuing struggle, the suspect allegedly stabbed both of the men. A fourth man then saw what was happening, and reportedly used his handgun to fire shots into the air in an effort to stop the fight.

Wright said both victims were taken by ambulance to Columbia Memorial Hospital in Astoria. He did not know the nature of their injuries or their medical status.

Wright described the suspect as a local, possibly mentally unstable man who is known to police. Pacific County sheriff's deputies and Washington State Patrol troopers assisted at the scene.

Ag employers like Trump's guest worker comments

Labor approved 200,049 H-2A-visa foreign guest workers for U.S. farms in fiscal year 2017, up 20.7 percent from 165,741 in 2016. They are needed to meet farmers' needs in labor-intensive crops, agricultural organizations say.

"I haven't seen the whole text of his comments, but if he's recognizing that we need a workforce here that's legal and available, that's good news," said Michael Marsh, president and CEO of the National Council for Agricultural Employers in Washington, D.C.

The council continues to work with House Judiciary Chairman Robert Goodlatte, R-Virginia, and House leadership to "get a guest-worker program that will really work for us and be something that could really help agriculture," Marsh said.

Dan Fazio, executive director of WAFLA, formerly the Washington Farm Labor Association, in Olympia, Washington, said Trump's comments

"are a very positive sign."

WAFLA facilitated a large percentage of the 18,796 H-2A workers approved for Washington state in 2017.

"We've been working with the administration since they took office and when they told us to make a business case for the legal guest-worker program. That case has been made," Fazio said.

"If Congress fails to act on the Securing America's Future Act (HR 4760, sponsored by Goodlatte), we feel confident the administration will undertake the necessary policy changes to make H-2A more usable," Fazio said. Previously, he said those changes could be aimed at making the program less expensive and less cumbersome but would not be as permanent as congressional action.

Ryan Jacobsen, president of the Fresno County Farm Bureau in Fresno, California, said it's great the president and his administration are recognizing the issue.

"We've been told they've been paying attention, but this put it out front and center. Guest worker is one part. We also have to deal with those (illegal immigrants) already here. But it's great acknowledgment that this is an issue the administration seems willing to work on," Jacobsen said.

California growers have been slow to use H-2A because of difficulty in getting workers in a timely fashion for perishable crops and because of the cost of worker housing growers must provide, he said.

HR 4760 would bolster immigration enforcement and include the use of E-Verify (electronic verification of employment eligibility), fix the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program and replace the H-2A guest-worker program with a new category called H-2C. It's supported by the American Farm Bureau Federation and WAFLA but is opposed by Western Growers Association.
