Coast Guard rescues couple from sailing vessel

Associated Press

The Coast Guard says it rescued a husband and wife from a sailing vessel 180 miles off the coast of Grays Harbor, Washington.

Officials say an MH-60 Jayhawk helicopter crew on Saturday morning hoisted the couple from the vessel and transported them to the Coast Guard station in Warrenton.

Officials say the couple aboard a 46-foot sailing vessel was sailing between Hawaii and Bellingham, Washington, when they ran into rough weather and seas.

Officials say the vessel wasn't taking on water, but the aircrew at the request of the vessel owners hoisted the couple to the helicopter due to health concerns. The couple was treated for symptoms related to hypothermia. The Coast Guard has warned other vessels of the adrift sailing vessel.

The measure would also hold gun owners civilly liable for five years following an incident for injuries resulting from a failure to comply with the measure's requirements.

Opponents of the ballot title for IP 44 also claim the caption, as written, focuses on the locking requirement and doesn't adequately describe the penalties for failing to comply.

Legal challenges filed to gun storage ballot title

SALEM — Three legal challenges were last week against the ballot title for an initiative petition to impose storage requirements on Oregon gun owners.

The court challenge drastically shortens the time supporters have to gather signatures to get Initiative Petition 44 on the ballot, but they are publicly optimistic about the effort.

Ballot titles are the brief caption, summary and description of the result of a "yes" or "no" vote printed for each measure on the ballot. If anyone objects to the title, they can petition the Oregon Supreme Court to review the language.

The Oregon Supreme Court on Friday consolidated the three challenges to the IP 44 ballot title into one case, and set a June 25 deadline for the Oregon Attorney General to respond to the challenge. Challengers will then have until June 28 to file their own response.

Initiative Petition 44, filed in early April, would require gun owners to secure their firearms in a lock box or by using a trigger or cable lock. It would also require them to report if one of their guns is stolen or lost within 24 hours of learning of the theft or loss.

Failure to comply with those requirements would be considered a violation, not a crime.

The measure would also hold gun owners civilly liable for five years following an incident for injuries resulting from a failure to comply with the measure's requirements.

Supporters of the petition — including family members of people killed in the shooting at the Clackamas Town Center in 2012 — want to get the petition on the ballot in November. Challengers Keely Hopkins, state director for the National Rifle Association, and Paul Donheffner, legislative committee chairman for the Oregon Hunters' Association, expressed concerns about regulating how gun owners store their weapons.

"... IP 44 dictates particular storage and transfer requirements while imposing conditions that unduly burden the ability of law-abiding citizens to use arms for self-defense and other lawful purposes," their petition states. "Safety and storage is a matter of personal responsibility and subject to each individual's particular circumstances and needs."

Paul Kemp, one of the chief petitioners supporting IP 44, says that the group behind the measure, Oregonians for Safe Gun Storage and Reporting Lost/Stolen Firearms, has arranged to hire a paid signature-gathering firm to try to meet the July 6 deadline. Kemp says that his group is seeing "strong support" for the measure.

Body of missing fisherman found

The Daily Astorian

Authorities have found the body of a fisherman who had been missing since Tuesday.

Bret Allen Yates, 52, of Scappoose, had been missing since he went fishing from the shore Tuesday night near Clatsop Spit. Wednesday, after roughly 24 hours, the Coast Guard suspended its search, which was largely concentrated near the Columbia River side of the South Jetty.

His body was located Saturday on Social Security Beach at Fort Stevens State Park. Foul play does not appear to be a factor in Yates' death, according to the Clatsop County Sheriff's Office.
