Froome happy as Tour de France heads for the mountains

ANNECY, France — Chris Froome believes the mountains will reveal the true Tour de France contenders as he looks forward to the first of three grueling stages in the Alps.

"I'm feeling good and optimistic about the upcoming stages," the four-time champion said on Monday, the Tour's first rest day.

Froome, who is eighth overall after nine stages, is 1 minute, 42 seconds behind yellow-jersey holder Greg Van Avermaet before the first Alpine stage on Tuesday.

Van Avermaet is not expected to be a threat in the mountains, and Froome suggested the Belgian "will find it difficult to hang on tomorrow. It's a proper climbers stage."

Hulk Hogan reinstated into wrestling Hall of Fame

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — World Wrestling Entertainment Inc. has reinstated Hulk Hogan to its Hall of Fame, three years after he was found to have used racial slurs in a conversation caught on a sex tape.

The Connecticut-based company made the announcement in a statement Sunday.

"This second chance follows Hogan's numerous public apologies and volunteering to work with young people, where he is helping them learn from his mistake," the organization wrote.

Bolt to make run at pro soccer in Australia

SYDNEY — Usain Bolt is making a run at professional soccer in Australia.

The Olympic sprint great has long expressed his love of the game. Since his retirement from track, he has tested himself with Germany's Borussia Dortmund and the Norwegian club Stromsgodset.

Now, at 31, he will try out for six weeks with the Central Coast Mariners starting next month. If all goes well, he could play for a season in Australia's A-League.

Australian agent Tony Rallis said Monday the Mariners and Bolt have a deal in principle, "subject to a couple of benchmarks."

Kids learn how to survive, the Lewis and Clark way

Another week of outdoor summer activities in the Lewis and Clark National Historical Park.

Educators from the Lower Columbia Estuary Partnership and the park are leading two week-long camps, both featuring overnight camping opportunities.

Last week, kids who will be entering the fourth through sixth grades took part in the "Nature Adventure Camp," spending a night at Fort Clatsop and exploring the woods, water and animals in and around the national park.

This week, it's the "Nature Survival Camp," as kids entering the seventh through ninth grades take to the water and the woods, practicing skills to survive in nature, including navigation and foraging.

Monday, campers spent a good part of the day on the water, kayaking up and down the Lewis and Clark (Netul) River, near Fort Clatsop.

And the theme for the day was "realism," from the number of kayakers on the water, to putting practical survival skills to good use, as one kayak overturned and dumped boaters into a swift-moving river, with the tide coming in.

Boaters share a few laughs.

All made it out safely. "We've got 29 kids and four chaperones in the kayaks, making it 33, same as the (Lewis and Clark) expedition," said park ranger Cathy Petersen, education program coordinator for the National Park Service. "And we had some go in the water ... just like the expedition." And, like the original Corps of Discovery, kids were paddling up and down the Netul River, from the boat ramp at Netul landing to the shelter and picnic area, where they all received some candy and sweets (not like the Corps of Discovery).

The Nature Survival Camp continues Tuesday, with an overnight camping trip to the beach Wednesday and Thursday.

Three boaters got wet when their kayak collided with another and overturned.

Wrestlers sue Ohio State over doctor's sexual misconduct

By KANTELE FRANKO and JOHN SEEWER

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Four former wrestlers say in a lawsuit that Ohio State University officials ignored repeated complaints about a now-dead team doctor and failed to stop his "rampant sexual misconduct" that went on nearly two decades.

The lawsuit describes Richard Strauss, who killed himself after retiring from the university, as "a prolific sexual predator" who might have assaulted 1,500 or more male students at Ohio State.

Athletes who alerted officials about Strauss felt their complaints were futile and that the doctor was above the law in the eyes of the university, according to the federal lawsuit filed Monday.

Among the allegations in the lawsuit is that two wrestlers met with former Athletic Director Andy Geiger during the 1994-1995 season and complained about voyeurism and lewd acts by Strauss and other men at their practice facility.

The lawsuit says the university didn't take action or agree to move the team's practices following that meeting. The team did move into a new building about eight years later.

Geiger told The Associated Press a week ago that he did not remember meeting with the wrestlers or any complaints about Strauss. But he said he did speak with former wrestling coach Russ Hellickson about voyeurism in the showers.

Hellickson also has denied knowing about any abuse by Strauss.

Message seeking comment about the lawsuit were left with Ohio State on Tuesday.

The four wrestlers, whose names were not listed in the lawsuit, say Strauss sexually assaulted or harassed them in the late 1980s or 1990s.

The university in April announced that independent investigators were looking into allegations that Strauss fondled and groped male athletes during physical examinations and medical treatment.

His family has said they were "shocked and saddened" to learn of the allegations.

Strauss joined Ohio State in 1978 and retired as a professor in 1998. He later moved to California, where he killed himself in 2005 at age 67.
