County joins land lawsuit against feds

By JACK HEFFERNAN
The Daily Astorian

Clatsop County has joined a nationwide class-action lawsuit over reimbursements for land managed by the federal government.

The government owns just over 1,500 acres of land in the county. Established in 1977, the federal Payment in Lieu of Taxes program reimburses counties for land that would otherwise be a source of property tax revenue.

out the country and underfunded them in 2015, 2016 and 2017. A judge ruled in favor of the counties in December.

Clatsop County could reel in as much as $20,000 by joining the suit, though the exact figure has yet to be determined. Oregon counties overall are expected to haul in nearly $37 million. The government also has the right to appeal the December decision.

In other business Wednesday, commissioners: Passed an ordinance regulating the time, place and manner of marijuana businesses in unincorporated areas of the county. The regulations include restrictions on the hours retailers can sell each day — from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. — along with noise levels, standards for reducing odors, waste management and lighting rules.

A lawsuit filed in Utah claimed that Congress failed to appropriate the necessary funds to reimburse counties through-commissioners Wednesday. The handful of established marijuana businesses in the county have until February to make adjustments to comply with the ordinance.
