“The dance is done by all ages and sizes of women, and it is really fun,” said Raybuck, of Kent, Wash. “And if you don’t like your first teacher, then try another one. Teachers are as different as students are.”

Raybuck, an international performer and instructor with 41 years of belly dance experience, is teaching an Exciting Accents Workshop from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

“This workshop is for drum solo work, or any time there is something to accent,” Raybuck said. “Amaze your dance friends! Please bring your butt.”

Also, explore the gardens, watch the dancing, meet the chickens and enjoy your wonderful hosts, she said.

The farm started out as Susan’s private residence, but customers from the antique mall recognized the sign by the driveway. They would drive in, then apologize for intruding.

“I got tired of the apologies,” she said, “so I decided to open it to the public.”
