

A rough ride

Colin Murphey/The Daily Astorian

A sailboat ran aground next to the New Youngs Bay Bridge around 3:40 a.m. today. The two occupants decided to stay on the boat until high tide in the afternoon, according to a Warrenton Police Department Facebook post. Astoria 911 Dispatch has fielded numerous calls about the boat, and officials are investigating the cause of the grounding.

George, Ford award nominations open

The Daily Astorian

The Astoria-Warrenton Area Chamber of Commerce is taking nominations for its annual citizen-of-the-year awards in the two cities.

The George Award, a nod to a tongue-in-cheek statement of "let George do it," honors a citizen who steps forward to meet community needs. The Richard Ford Distinguished Service Award, named after a former building inspector, fire chief and volunteer, honors someone of the same ilk in Warrenton.

Nominations will be accepted until 5 p.m. Nov. 30. Learn more at OldOregon.com. Copies of the nomination form are also available at the chamber's Astoria office, 111 W. Marine Drive, or Warrenton City Hall, 225 S. Main Ave.

Grim forecast from UN on risk of global climate change

Pledges so far from nations are not enough

By CHRISTOPHER JOYCE
National Public Radio

Some of the world's top climate scientists have concluded that global warming is likely to reach dangerous levels unless new technologies are developed to remove greenhouse gases from the atmosphere.

The United Nations' Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change says pledges from the world's governments to reduce greenhouse gases, made in Paris in 2015, aren't enough to keep global warming from rising more than 2.7 degrees above preindustrial temperatures.

That was the Paris agreement's most ambitious target.

But even with the increase, the world can expect serious changes to weather, sea levels, agriculture and natural ecosystems, according to a report issued Monday following an IPCC meeting in South Korea.

"Limiting warming to (2.7 degrees) is possible within the laws of chemistry and physics," says Jim Skea of Imperial College London, one of the authors of the report, "but doing so would require unprecedented changes."

Scientists and climate researchers have long doubted that the goal was practical or economically feasible.

Mayoral debate Wednesday at college

The Daily Astorian

A debate between candidates for mayor of Astoria is scheduled for 7 p.m. Wednesday at Patriot Hall on the Clatsop Community College campus, 1651 Lexington Ave.

The event will be moderated by Chris Breitmeyer, the college's president. It is free and open to the public.

It is co-sponsored by the college, the American Association of University Women, Coast Community Radio and The Daily Astorian.

'Fish Tales' the topic at Nature Matters series

The Daily Astorian

The Nature Matters series presents "Fish Tales: Traditions and Challenges of Seafood in Oregon" with Jennifer Burns Bright at 7 p.m. Thursday in Fort George's Lovell Building showroom.

The event is free and open to the public. The doors open at 6 p.m.

Burns Bright is a food educator and travel writer based in Port Orford.

Nature Matters is hosted by National Historical Park in partnership with the North Coast Watershed Association, the Lewis & Clark National Park Association and Fort George.
