

Get yourself lost in Netarts Bay history

NETARTS BAY — Friends of Netarts Bay Watershed, Estuary, Beach and Sea (WEBS) invite you to get lost in the history of Netarts Bay this November.

Netarts is an area with many secrets to reveal.

• 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Nov. 3: “Stories of Netarts Past”

Dive into tales of early settler activities, including stories about the Lost Netarts Gold Mine, how Netarts got its name, the Tillamook Indian War, Netarts’ role in building the Morning Star and Netarts’ first murder victim. New this year is a slide show on the growth of the Netarts-Oceanside area.

• 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11: “History Between the Capes”

Park Ranger Travis Korbe, of the Cape Lookout Management Unit of Oregon State Parks, will provide an overview of the history from Cape Lookout to Cape Meares. Korbe will offer a private tour of the Cape Meares Lighthouse after the talk.

These events require registration. Find out more at netartsbaytoday.org, the WEBS Facebook page or by searching for the Friends of Netarts Bay on Eventbrite.com.

All of WEBS community programs are free.

Have a grate time with cheese whiz Marc Bates

CANNON BEACH — Marc Bates, aka “The Cheese Guy” who worked in the world of cheese for more than 40 years, brings his expertise to Tolovana Hall for an evening of cheese tasting and appreciation 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 8.

He will outline the pillars, such as soft cheeses (like ricotta), soft ripened cheese (chevre), bloomy rinds (Brie and Camembert), hard cheeses (Swiss and Gouda) and more.

And, of course, he’ll provide tastes.

Along the way, he’ll outline ingredients, processes and the basics of cheesemaking.

The event is produced in partnership with the Tolovana Arts Colony. Tickets are $15 — cheese is included.

RSVP is recommended. Do so by emailing tolovanaartscolony@gmail.com or

Learn about Arch Cape Forest

ARCH CAPE — Free presentations on the Arch Cape Forest take place 11 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 3, at the Arch Cape Fire Station, 79279 U.S. Highway 101. Refreshments will be provided.

The Arch Cape Domestic Water Supply District has applied for a Federal Forest Legacy grant to assist in the acquisition of the forest land that forms the backdrop of Arch Cape and supplies the community’s drinking water.

North Coast Land Conservancy is simultaneously working to acquire an adjacent parcel, including Onion Peak, as part of the “Rainforest Reserve.” All partners are collaborating to protect these coastal headlands.

On Saturday, there will be presentations by Mary Olson, Arch Cape Forest’s outreach coordinator, and Shreejita Basu, of Sustainable Northwest. Geologist Tom Horning will also give a presentation titled “The Geology of Arch Cape and Angora Peak.”

Presentations are expected to last until 12:30 p.m., with time for questions afterward.

For more information, contact Olson at archcapeforest@gmail.com, or visit archcapeforest.org.

With canned goods, check out Maritime Museum

ASTORIA — Visit the Columbia River Maritime Museum on Sunday, Nov. 4, for Community Day, where locals and guests can experience one of the finest maritime museums on the West Coast for free with a suggested donation of canned goods or cash for the Clatsop Community Action Regional Food Bank.

The Columbia River Maritime Museum, 1792 Marine Drive, is open 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.
