

Balancing conservation, public access

ASTORIA — North Coast Land Conservancy is working on its biggest project ever: conservation of 3,500 acres of forestland above Oswald West State Park to benefit people, plants and wildlife.

What is the right amount of public access for this property, if any?

The Thursday, Nov. 8, Nature Matters talk features Land Conservancy Executive Director Katie Voelke in an open-ended discussion about how to balance the needs of people, plants and wildlife in conserved lands on the Oregon Coast.

The 7 p.m. presentation takes place at the Fort George Lovell Showroom, 1483 Duane St. The free event is open to the public. Doors open at 6 p.m. for attendees to purchase dinner or beverages.

Nature Matters, a conversation about the intersection of nature and culture, takes place on the second Thursday of each month, October through May.

For more information, call the park at 503-861-2471 or check out nps.gov/lewi or Lewis and Clark National Historical Park on Facebook or Instagram.

Remington, Paino partner on art show 'Moving Over'

ASTORIA — Artists Terrie Remington and Kitty Paino will have a partnered art show called "Moving Over: Reflections On Humans and Nature," at the Gallery at Grace Episcopal Church in Astoria.

Meet the artists 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 11, at the Grace Episcopal Gallery, 1545 Franklin Ave.

The show will be viewable through Friday, Dec. 7: 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday, and 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sundays.

Though their styles are different, Remington and Paino both paint their connections the spiritual and physical world.

Remington has made her living with unique and painted sculpture art form, sculptures and masks for more than 50 years.

Kitty has a graduate degree in art and has won several regional and international awards. Her pieces are mixed media and acrylic on paper and canvas, and masks.

Welcome to the 'World of Haystack Rock'

CANNON BEACH — The World of Haystack Rock 2018-19, a series of lectures at the Cannon Beach Library, will be held on the second Wednesday of each month, 7 to 8:30 p.m. November through May.

The first talk takes place Wednesday, Nov. 14. Cristen Don, Marine Reserves Program leader with the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife, will present "There's More Beneath the Surface."

Don oversees the policy work and administration of the program. Over the past 15 years her work has spanned a variety of ocean-related topics, including marine protected areas, ocean renewable energy and fisheries.

We'll take a virtual underwater tour of Oregon's five marine sites and explore the work done at the Cape Falcon site by ODFW and our many collaborators.

The lectures are sponsored by the Friends of Haystack

TIFFANY BOOTHE PHOTO

Falcon Cove.

Rock, a nonprofit organization focused on keeping Haystack Rock healthy and thriving.

The library is located at 131 N. Hemlock St.

Upcoming talks:

- Dec. 12: Samantha Zeman, "Zooplankton: Indicators of Ocean Change"
- Jan. 9: Matt Hunter, "Oregon's Razor Clam Resource; Past, Current, and the Future"

• Feb. 13: Joshua Sarnpa, "Lifecycle and Rehabilitation of the Common Murre"

• March 13: Joe Liebezeit, "Oregon's Black Oystercatchers"

• April 10: Shawn Stephensen, "The Puffin Study"

• May 8: Katie Voelke, "Conservation Land and Public Access: The Pros and Cons"

Students present pop art with Northwest twist

ASTORIA — The Astoria High School art department will be hosting "POP NW," an art show featuring work from each student in the program, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 10.

Pieces will reflect the colorful stylings of pop art, but with a Northwest twist.

The show will be held at the Barbey Maritime Center, next to the Columbia River Maritime Museum, and feature drawings, paintings, ceramics, photography and more. The show also includes pieces created by Astoria

Middle School students.

Many pieces will be available for purchase, with proceeds going toward the high school and middle school art programs.

Refreshments will be available, and many of the student artists will be in attendance.

'It's a Wonderful Life' recreated as 1940s radio play

NEHALEM — Riverbend Players will put on a production of the Christmas classic "It's a Wonderful Life: A Live Radio Play" by Joe Landry at the North County Recreation District Performing Arts Center, 36155 Ninth St.

The show is recreated in the style of a 1940s radio play complete with authentic costumes and sounds.

Showings are 7 p.m. Nov.

9, 10, 17, and 2 p.m. Nov. 11 and 18.

Tickets are $12 (plus service fee) and advanced tickets are $15 (no fees) at the door. Advanced tickets are available at tickettomato.com.

George Bailey, overwhelmed by family obligations and a sense of responsibility toward his community, feels tied down to a company he never wanted to work for, and a life he never wanted to live. As he ages, he sees his youth, dreams and opportunities pass him by.

Unknown to George, all of his friends and family have been praying for him to get through these hard times. Told through the point of view of a group of angels, he is met by his guardian angel, Clarence, as he contemplates ending his life.

Discover Scandinavian Design

finnware
Est. 1987

1116 Commercial
Astoria, OR
(503)325-5720

31st

Birthday SALE

November 9th - 12th

SAVE 25%

ON ALMOST THE ENTIRE STORE