Astoria

Aug. 31, 1942 — Nov. 26, 2018

Eileen Fay Tarabochia, of Astoria, died at Peace Health Medical Center in Longview, Washington, on Nov. 26, 2018. She was 76 years old.

Eileen was born on Aug. 31, 1942, to Ole A. and Anita (Davis) Askeland in Creston, Illinois. Shortly after, the family moved back to Astoria to be closer to family, as Ole served in World War II. Eileen attended Lewis and Clark Grade School and Astoria High School.

On May 31, 1960, Eileen married Frank Tarabochia in Astoria. They were married for 52 years when Frank died on March 9, 2013.

Eileen was a homemaker and was proud to be a "fisherman's wife," taking impeccable care of the household and the girls, while Frank fished in Alaska and Puget Sound. Eileen loved going to the float house in Woody Island, near the Tarabochia's fishing drifts, when fishing started "Up River!" Eileen would fish with Frank, and help him with net work. Later, when gillnetting slowed down, Frank did test fishing for the state of Oregon, and Eileen recorded the data for the state.

Eileen enjoyed her family, cooking, baking, gardening, interior design, jewelry, tennis and the Boston Red Sox! She was proud of her Norwegian heritage! She was a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Astoria.

Eileen is survived by her daughters, Kimberly (Barry) Minkoff, of Svensen, and Stephanie (Chester) Bushnell, of Warrenton; grandchildren, Nick North, of Svensen, Megan North, of Astoria, Eric Jenson, of Astoria, and Natalie Bushnell and Ashton Bushnell, of Warrenton; sisters, Kay Rettew, of Astoria, and Cheri (Bob) Temple, of Warrenton, Beverly Askeland, of Portland, and Devri Pall, of California; brothers-in-law, Joe Tarabochia Jr., of Astoria, Mike (Kathie) Tarabochia, of Gladstone and Bob Temple, of Warrenton; sisters-in-law, Judi Tarabochia, of Eugene, Joan Tarabochia, of Canby, Kathie Tarabochia, of Gladstone, and Loveen Tarabochia, of Astoria; special friend, Linda Martin, of Astoria; and many nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her husband; her parents; sisters-in-law, Joyce Tarabochia and Katherine Sagen; brothers-in-law, John Tarabochia, Norman Sagen and Harold Rettew; her father and mother-in-law, Joe Sr. and Winnie Tarabochia; all of Astoria; and special friends, Jerry Davis and Hal Snow.

Viewing will be held from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1, at Caldwell's Luce-Layton Mortuary, 1165 Franklin Ave., Astoria. Graveside services will be held at 1 p.m. at Ocean View Cemetery in Warrenton, followed by a cake and coffee reception from 2 to 4 p.m. in the St. Mary, Star of the Sea School Auditorium, 1411 Grand Ave.

Baseball organizers secure rights to develop in Portland

New ballpark pitched for port

By ANNA GRIFFIN

The group trying to bring Major League Baseball to Oregon says it has secured the rights to develop land owned by the Port of Portland.

The Portland Diamond Project announced Thursday that it has signed a letter of intent with the Port to develop Terminal 2. That's a 53-acre marine cargo terminal in northwest Portland along the Willamette River and just north of the Pearl District.

It's not clear how the Diamond Project would pay to redevelop the land or build a major league-ready ballpark; the press release issued by the group Thursday included no talk of money, and the two sides signed a nondisclosure agreement when they began negotiating earlier this year.

Port officials say they're negotiating leasing the property, not selling it outright. The letter of intent, which is not a public record, allows the port and the Diamond Project to do more work to determine whether baseball makes sense for Terminal 2 and negotiate a deal.

Still, securing an agreement in principle for a specific piece of property is another step toward making a serious pitch for either an expansion franchise or one seeking to relocate.

Baseball commissioner Rob Manfred has expressed an interest in expanding to 32 teams. And the Oakland A's and Tampa Bay Rays are both working to get new stadium deals.

Signing a letter of intent means baseball organizers can get more serious about figuring out financing and which public entities might serve as partners in any attempt to woo Major League Baseball.

It's the next step in negotiations between the port and the baseball group, but any final deal would need to be approved by the port's governing commission.

Diamond Project president Craig Cheek said in a written announcement that his group remains open to other properties.

Local nonprofits net nearly $93,000 in Fort George Brewery fundraiser

The Daily Astorian

Participants in Fort George Brewery's Magnanimous Mug competition, which ended Tuesday, raised nearly $93,000 for 12 local nonprofits.

The event brought together 12 representatives each raising money for a local nonprofit. The winner received the Magnanimous Mug stein and up to a $10,000 match from Fort George.

Dan Stein, representing the Friends of the Astoria Armory, came in first after raising more than $29,000.

"Dan will also receive the Magnanimous Mug, which is part of our Mug Club," Brad Blaser, a spokesman for Fort George, said in a release. "And although Dan is not a beer drinker, he's been assured he can still put his diet soda in there."

Jeff Daly, left, the winner of the first Magnanimous Mug in 2015, stands next to Dan Stein, this year's winner, after raising more than $29,000 for the Astoria Armory.

Altogether, the 12 participants gathered nearly $77,000, with $16,000 added by Fort George.

In addition to Magnanimous Mug, the brewery organizes a monthly benefit night the last Tuesday of each month, with the exception of holidays. The next event Dec. 18 will benefit the Wildlife Center of the North Coast.
