

A childlike sense of wonder: doing philosophy with children

ASTORIA — If philosophy is “the love of wisdom,” then children are natural philosophers. They ask how we know things we take for granted, why things are important, and question and challenge the reality of the world around them.

The problem is that the rest of us often don’t know exactly how to tap into this natural philosophical strength. But this doesn’t have to be the case.

Join Clatsop Community College Instructor Seth Tichenor and Filosofarian for a discussion of how to do philosophy with children and an exploration of just philosophical “child’s play”

Robin Hood is the outlaw of Sherwood Forest, leading a merry life with his followers. Impoverished citizens led by Robin are waging a battle against the evil Prince John. He has taken the place of King Richard the Lion-Hearted, who has gone on a crusade. Lady Merle of Cornwall, however, hopes to make John more acceptable to the people of England by forcing Maid Marian, Robin’s childhood sweetheart, to marry the Prince. Robin must stop the marriage, defeat a nasty sheriff and secure Nottingham for the king’s return.
