Clever as a Fox

Foxes are very smart and crafty in finding food, surviving in extreme weather, outsmarting predators, protecting their young and more. They're smarter than most, but not all, dog breeds. How many foxes can you find on this page?

Member of the Dog Family

While a fox is a member of the dog family, it has some traits that are very cat-like. Foxes are nocturnal (active at night). Fox eyes are like a cat with vertical pupils that allow it to see in dim light. And like the cat, the fox has sensitive whiskers and spines on its tongue. It has retractable claws, just like a cat. It walks on its toes in a graceful, cat-like tread. The gray fox can climb trees and has, on occasion, taken naps in owl and hawk nests!

Standards Link: Research: Use the newspaper to locate information.

The fennec fox is the smallest of the foxes. It has enormous ears, measuring 6 inches (15 cm). They live in desert zones of North Africa and the Sinai and Arabian peninsulas.	The red fox can be found in North and Central America, Northern Africa, Asia and Australia. It is at home in the wild and in urban areas.	The Arctic fox is found in Canada, Alaska, Russia, Greenland, and Scandinavia. The Arctic fox is the only native land mammal found in Iceland.	Gray foxes live in forests and woodland areas of North and Central America. Gray foxes are the only members of the dog family that can climb trees.
