

Astoria honors a native son

A day for Jacob

By KATIE FRANKOWICZ
The Daily Astorian

Astoria leaders declared Friday Robert “Jake” Jacob Day after the entrepreneur and architect who preserved and created numerous city landmarks.

Jacob, who was born and raised in Astoria, would have turned 70 on Friday. He died at his home in Astoria last year.

A proclamation Mayor Bruce Jones read at a City Council meeting on Monday praised how Jacob spent the “last decades of his life enthusiastically helping create a vibrant and thriving Astoria.”

Jacob helped design the master plan for the Astoria

Riverwalk. He was key in saving and preserving the Liberty Theatre, brought the Astoria Riverfront Trolley to town, designed and built the Cannery Pier Hotel & Spa and led the charge to preserve and restore the Astoria Armory and the historic river ferry Tourist No. 2.

Though he struggled with alcoholism, he was known as a generous and energetic champion of the city and its residents.

“Astoria is a better community for everyone to live in and visit because of Robert ‘Jake’ Jacob,” the proclamation concluded.

Jacob had a reputation of not taking “no” for an answer.

Jones recalled being invited out to have a burger with a group that included Jacob and rental property owner and Astoria Planning

Robert ‘Jake’ Jacob

Commissioner Sean Fitzpatrick.

“And the next thing I knew I was on the board of the Astoria Armory,” Jones said. Five years later, he is still on the board.

“What a wonderful decision and vision (Jacob) had to keep that building from rotting away, instead having it be a thriving community center and all the other wonderful things that Jake did,” Jones said.

“So we’re very pleased to be able to honor Jake on the 19th with this special day.”

Coast Guardsmen plead guilty to sex crimes tied to 2017 house party

Chinook Observer

SOUTH BEND, Wash. — The high-profile prosecution of two Coast Guardsmen for sex crimes in 2017 is almost over following guilty pleas last week by Salvador Zamora, of Tacoma, to rape in the third degree and first-degree voyeurism.

Zamora, 25, and Guillermo Gutierrez, 27, who were stationed at Station Cape Disappointment, were charged following an investigation of a house party on Sandridge Road during which an unconscious woman was raped and a video of the crime shared via Snapchat.

Zamora’s crimes are punishable by up to five years in prison, a $10,000 fine, or both. His sentencing is scheduled for August.

In September, Gutierrez pleaded guilty to first-degree voyeurism after a rape charge was dismissed. Sentencing was deferred until Zamora’s case was completed. Gutierrez will likely get a sentence of four to 12 months, according to court documents.

Pacific County Prosecutor Mark McClain said the victim agreed with the plea agreements.

“In any case like this, the most important thing we can do is work with the survivor of this attack, and ensure we listen to her wishes as she is the one who has to live it again when we go to trial and for that reason we value their settlement desire above others when deciding how to resolve these cases,” he said. “Here, the victim, was supportive of the resolution and simply wanted to put this behind her.”

Zamora and Gutierrez face long-term consequences for their crimes.

“This resolution ensures this man (Zamora) is known as a sex offender, as both will be required to complete sex offender treatment, and will be required to register as sex offenders once they leave jail,” McClain said.

College invites public to MERTS open house

Clatsop Community College will hold an open house from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on May 3 at the Marine and Environmental Research and Training Station.

The campus hosts the college’s welding, automotive, firefighting, historic preservation and other career-technical programs. With one of the only maritime science programs in the region, it is Oregon’s official maritime training college. The college is also planning an environmental science program based around the campus and surrounding wetlands.

All programs will feature displays and interactive demonstrations, such as a virtual welding machine. Representatives from the college’s criminal justice program, bookstore and admissions department will be on hand to answer questions. Classic cars and street rods will be on display, along with activities through the state Air National Guard.

The campus is at 6550 Liberty Lane in Astoria.

Appeals court rules juvenile sentencing law unconstitutional

By CONRAD WILSON and DIRK VANDERHART
Oregon Public Broadcasting

The Oregon Court of Appeals ruled 2-1 today that the state’s sentencing of juveniles convicted of aggravated murder violates the U.S. Constitution.

“... We conclude that the imposition of life imprisonment... on juvenile offenders without individualized considerations of youth by the sentencing court, is unconstitutional under the Eighth Amendment.”

The ruling comes as the state Legislature considers more leniency for juvenile offenders.

In a dramatic vote that appeared uncertain until the very end, three state Senate Republicans joined 17 Democrats on Tuesday to approve a bill to scale back strict mandatory sentences on juvenile offenders by a razor-thin margin of 20-10. The bill, which now moves to the House, needed a two-thirds’ vote to advance.

The legislation, the culmination of nearly a year’s work, was a collection of five individual bills submitted earlier this year to adjust juvenile sentencing laws. Among its provisions, the bill:

- Scraps voter-approved provisions that require some youth who commit serious crimes to be tried as adults, instead leaving that decision to a judge. Crimes for which juveniles 15 or older must be tried as adults include murder, sex offenses, kidnapping and arson.

- Allows juvenile offenders scheduled to be released before their 27th birthday to be released when they turn 25, rather than being switched from the Oregon Youth Authority to the adult Department of Corrections.

- Creates new provisions for when serious juvenile offenders are eligible for conditional release.

- Ensures that people who commit crimes before they are 18, but aren’t sentenced until they turn 19, can be put into custody of the Oregon Youth Authority.

Those proposals had backing from a wide array of justice officials, including Attorney General Ellen Rosenblum, Department of Corrections Director Colette Peters and Oregon Youth Authority Director Joe O’Leary. Gov. Kate Brown is also in favor.

Oregon lawmakers have for years worked to scale back certain sentencing laws for adults, but had not put a focus on juveniles. Part of that was due to the high hurdle those changes faced. Because voters approved mandatory juvenile sentences for certain serious crimes in 1994’s Measure 11, they require the support of two-thirds of lawmakers in each chamber to be changed.

Richard ‘Dick’ Lang Astoria April 1, 1952 — April 9, 2019

On April 9, 2019, Richard “Dick” Lang, loving husband, father and grandfather, passed away at the age of 67.

Dick was born April 1, 1952, on Eglin Air Force Base in Florida. He graduated from the Coast Guard Academy in 1974, and earned a master’s degree from the Naval Postgraduate School in 1980. Dick served in many posts around the U.S., and quickly advanced to lead his own commands.

After retiring from the Coast Guard at the rank of commander, Dick managed emergency communications for the Astoria Police Department until his full retirement in 2007.

He and his wife had a fondness for dogs, and lovingly cared for many throughout their marriage. Dick also spent time crossing the country to visit his granddaughters, and will always be known as a loving, devoted grandfather.

Dick will be remembered and missed by many family members and friends. He is survived by his wife, Betsey Lang; his three children, Heather (Bill) Collins, Michael (Becca) Lang and Christopher (Michelle) Lang; his four grandchildren, Violet, Trinity, Clara and Winter; his mother, Irma; and his three brothers, Hal, Paul and Phil.
