

Children's advocacy center will open soon in Seaview

SEAVIEW, Wash. — A children's advocacy center will soon be open for south Pacific County residents.

Crisis Support Network will open its new children's advocacy center in May on State Route 103. The center will provide forensic interviewing and counseling for young abuse and sexual assault victims.

"We'll be able to provide services to all of the children in Pacific County equally," said Jennifer Mitchell, the group's programs manager. "We'll keep families off of the roads traveling back and forth for these appointments, and bring services to them. Having to travel to North County won't be a part of our kids' experience now."

Forensic interviewers work with victims to learn what happened to them, without traumatizing them more. The interview style allows for caseworkers to determine how best to care for victims.

Like the group's Raymond children's advocacy center, the Seaview location will be kid-friendly. Kids who visit the center will only spend time in colorful rooms featuring items like toys and books.

During a child's interview, a group of professionals monitors the discussion out of sight, helping to guide the direction. The group includes a combination of law enforcement officers, counselors, medical providers and social workers.

Crisis Support Network's offices, staff and services will be split between the new location and its Long Beach office at Second Street NE. General crime cases, such as identity theft or vehicular assault, will be handled at the Second Street office. Domestic violence and sexual abuse victims will be served at the new office.

"We will serve whoever walks through the door with those crimes," Mitchell said.

The Seaview office won't only help reduce travel time for victims, it'll help those who work on the victims' cases. When cases were handled in Raymond, law enforcement officers and caseworkers sometimes wouldn't be able to attend interviews. The group would provide the case's team with a DVD copy of the interview.

The new center will make for an easier and shorter commute for caseworkers located in South County.

"If they can be part of that interview, they're able to chime in, give feedback, tell the interviewer to ask certain questions," said Rachel McClain, the children's advocacy center deputy director and forensic interviewer. "It's really helpful to have them here."

Mary 'Carolyn' Shawgo Eugene

Aug. 25, 1939 — April 3, 2019

Mary "Carolyn" Shawgo lived from Aug. 25, 1939 to April 3, 2019. Carolyn was born in Mason City, Illinois, and eventually went on to experience a multitude of cities, both within the U.S. and abroad.

She raised her four Oakerson children (Rebecca, Rachel, Don and Sara) in Gretna, Nebraska, and later included Brenda Kritenbrink. Carolyn elected to earn her master's degree in counseling and guidance from the University of Nebraska, Omaha. She then moved to Las Vegas to practice as a mental health therapist for several years.

While she loved her work there, Carolyn's priorities were in her relationships with her children and grandchildren. She relocated to the Pacific Northwest to be closer in proximity, and then moved between Eugene, Vancouver, Astoria and Seaside to spend formative years with each grandchild (Sarah, Cassandra, Bryce, Chelsea, Sabrina and Ian).

Carolyn was also passionate about providing support to others, and traveled to various disaster sites (9/11, Hurricane Katrina, Haiti), volunteering her mental health expertise with the American Red Cross.

She continued in her giving nature by painting beautiful sand dollars and offering them in exchange for donations at Sleepy Monk Coffee. The money went to the Cannon Beach Food Bank. This earned her the nickname "Sand Dollar Lady."

She exuded love, an ability to take herself lightly and an affinity for beauty in life, soaking in the natural wonder of the ocean or enjoying a decadent dessert. She passed away in Eugene after battling for several years with pulmonary fibrosis.

Carolyn was surrounded by many loved ones throughout her life, and especially during her final days. Her joy, laughter and larger-than-life presence will be fiercely missed by her family members, many friends and acquaintances. Her lessons on life and love for every one of her family members will ensure her spirit is always with us, constantly making sure we are the best we can be.

Carolyn's celebration of life will be held on Sunday, May 19, at Unity of the Valley, 3912 Dillard Road in Eugene, Oregon, from 2 to 5 p.m. We will be honoring one of her favorite customs by enjoying assorted desserts first, followed by a time for family and friends to share memories and experiences about Carolyn.

Memorial donations in Carolyn's honor can be directed to jordanshope.org or nayapdx.org

CORRECTION

Pregnancy clinic services incorrect — The Coast Pregnancy Clinic, a Christian pregnancy resource center, does not refer women for abortions. The clinic provides counseling, but not referrals. An A2 story on Monday incorrectly stated that the clinic refers for abortions.

ON THE RECORD

Assault
• At 4:46 p.m. on Friday, Astoria police arrested Joseph Milton Gruhlkey, 32, of Astoria, for fourth-degree assault/domestic violence, menacing, first-degree theft, first-degree burglary and tampering with a witness. Gruhlkey's girlfriend reported that he allegedly broke into her apartment, changed her locks and took her cat. Gruhlkey later returned to the apartment while the woman was home and allegedly slapped her. A witness at the scene told police he blocked her path when she tried to leave and she was worried he was going to hit her as well.

DUII
• At 12:03 a.m. today, Catherine Neil, 38, of Astoria, backed into the new Wendy's restaurant in Warrenton, scraping her car along the building in the drive-thru. Warrenton police responded and ended up arresting her for driving under the influence of intoxicants as well as reckless endangering, since a young child was in the car with her. Neil's blood alcohol content was 0.14 percent.

• At 8:30 p.m. on Saturday, Astoria police arrested

Sophie Ellen Sundqvist, 23, of Astoria, on Marine Drive for DUII. Her blood alcohol content was 0.08 percent.

• At 11:13 p.m. on Friday, Astoria police arrested Anthony Michael Freed, 50, of Tidewater, near Alameda Avenue and Lincoln Street for DUII. His blood alcohol content was 0.11 percent.

• At 7:09 p.m. on Friday, Warrenton police arrested Catherine Bobzien, 60, of Portland, at Fort Stevens State Park and charged her with DUII. Her blood alcohol content was 0.18 percent.
