Quarterback Russell Wilson calls a play in the huddle against the Vikings.

Projecting Seahawks' 53-man roster

By BOB CONDOTTA
Seattle Times

If a few unexpectedly good performances made projecting the Seahawks' 53-man roster that much tougher after the first week of preseason, injuries and a few staggers at Minnesota added to the challenge following the second preseason game.

But projecting is what we do here.

So here's our best guess at putting it all together after Sunday's 25-19 loss to the Vikings.

Quarterbacks
Keep: Russell Wilson, Geno Smith.
Cut: Paxton Lynch, J.T. Barrett
Comment: Lynch didn't have a ton of help against the Vikings, but also missed a few things that were there, and this didn't feel like the big taking-advantage-of-an-opportunity that it could have been. I had the team keeping Smith after last week, anyway, since one week seemed like too little to make a change just yet. Smith didn't play against the Vikings, but it sounds like he'll be back for the Chargers. This week could allow him to solidify the job — or leave it that much more open for the final week of the preseason, when Lynch and Smith will probably get all the snaps. Barrett isn't a factor yet.

Running backs
Keep: Chris Carson, Rashaad Penny, Bo Scarbrough, Nick Bellore, Travis Homer.

Cut: C.J. Prosise, J.D. McKissic, Xavier Turner.
Comment: I'm adding Homer this week after he got healthy and showed a few things late in the game against the Vikings. For now, he may be the leader in the race for the third-down/two-minute back spot with the inability of Prosise and McKissic to get healthy. Scarbrough didn't play against the Vikings. But he was off to a nice start early in the Denver game and for now, I'm keeping him.

Receivers
Keep: Tyler Lockett, DK Metcalf, Gary Jennings, David Moore, Jaron Brown.
Cut: Jazz Ferguson, Amara Darboh, John Ursua,

Terry Wright, Malik Turner, Keenan Reynolds.
Comment: I'm back to five receivers, cutting Ferguson this week after what was somewhat of a struggle of an outing against the Vikings — just two receptions on seven targets, including a drop and a fumble after one of his two catches. And I'm also going with the idea that Ferguson, Ursua and Wright could all make it through to the practice squad. In fact, the rotations Sunday indicated that if there were to be a sixth receiver kept it would be Turner. The one big complication here, suddenly, is Metcalf's health. Coach Pete Carroll said there's a

Hernandez to rejoin Mariners rotation this weekend

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Pitcher Felix Hernandez will rejoin the Seattle Mariners' starting rotation this weekend, according to Manager Scott Servais.

Hernandez has missed three months with right shoulder stiffness. He pitched 3-plus innings Monday night for Triple-A Tacoma in his fourth rehab appearance, giving up one run on four hits and three walks while striking out five.

"Command of the fastball, as expected, wasn't as pin-point as he would have liked it, but he felt healthy," Servais said. "So he will slide into our rotation on Saturday."

The 33-year-old righty last pitched for the Mariners on May 11. In eight starts this season, Hernandez is 1-4 with a 6.52 ERA.

Hernandez won the AL Cy Young Award in 2010 and has finished among the top four in Cy Young voting three other times. He has had injury setbacks in each of the last four seasons, winning a combined 26 games in 77 starts.
