

BLOODYVOX

AN ABSURD, WONDERFUL HALLOWEEN PERFORMANCE

BY MALIA RIGGS

Fresh blood to spill and a dance to die for. Bloodyvox will be performing at the Liberty Theatre at 7 p.m. Saturday. Tickets are $20-$35.

Choreographed and founded by Emmy Award-winning choreographers Jamey

Hampton and Ashley Roland, Bodyvox or, for this October, Bloodyvox, incorporates an all around viewing experience. See the works of Hitchcock, Lugosi and Karloff channeled on stage all while getting into the spooky spirit.

“We never want to confine ourselves to a narrow trough, we can bring elements from all different kinds of services and expression. Primarily through the body, film and tech, it creates something that couldn’t be created without it,” Hampton said. “We use story, humor, film, lighting and imagery but dance takes place on our stage and above all of that. A human body is the primary mechanism that does our work,” Hampton said.

See Page 11