Metronomoly plays music from Mozart to Metallica

WARRENTON — Metronomoly will play music spanning from Mozart to Metallica Sunday at 4 p.m. at the Pioneer Presbyterian Church.

The duo is comprised of Astoria musicians Jude Matulich-Hall and Ron Thompson.

In addition to music from Metallica, you will also hear Debussy's art song, "Beau Soir" (arranged by Heifetz); compositions by Oskar Reiding; "Nocturne," composed by Lili Boulanger; and music from Roald Dahl's "Willy Wonka," among others.

The duo, like the metronome, keeps time, and anomaly, that deviates from what is standard.

The church is located at 33324 Patriot Way, Warrenton, next to Camp Rilea. Admission is by donation. Refreshments will be served.

Live music, creature double-feature

ASTORIA — The horror rock bands Hideous Monster and Toxic Zombie descend upon the Labor Temple Bar at 10 p.m. on Saturday. Guests must be 21 years or older. There is a $5 cover charge.

The two Portland bands were forged from the campfires of B-monster movies and nourished by the sounds of The Cramps, Kiss and the Misfits.

Hideous Monster came to life in 2017 and draws from the members' shared love for all things horror.

Toxic Zombie is embalmed with the foundation of American rock-n-roll and rejuvenated with decades of iconic influences.

The Labor Temple is located at 934 Duane St. in Astoria.

The horror rock band Hideous Monster will play at the Labor Temple Saturday.
