

Who won?

The results are in for the Lockdown Lowdown coloring contest

BY ALYSSA EVANS

Earlier this month, Coast Weekend asked readers to creatively color scenes of the coast for Coast Weekend's Lockdown Lowdown coloring contest.

Participants showed up for the challenge. Many chose bright colors and few stayed within the lines.

The contest featured seven entries, with participants from both Oregon and Washington state. Readers had a week to submit their coloring pages, then a week to vote for their favorite entry.

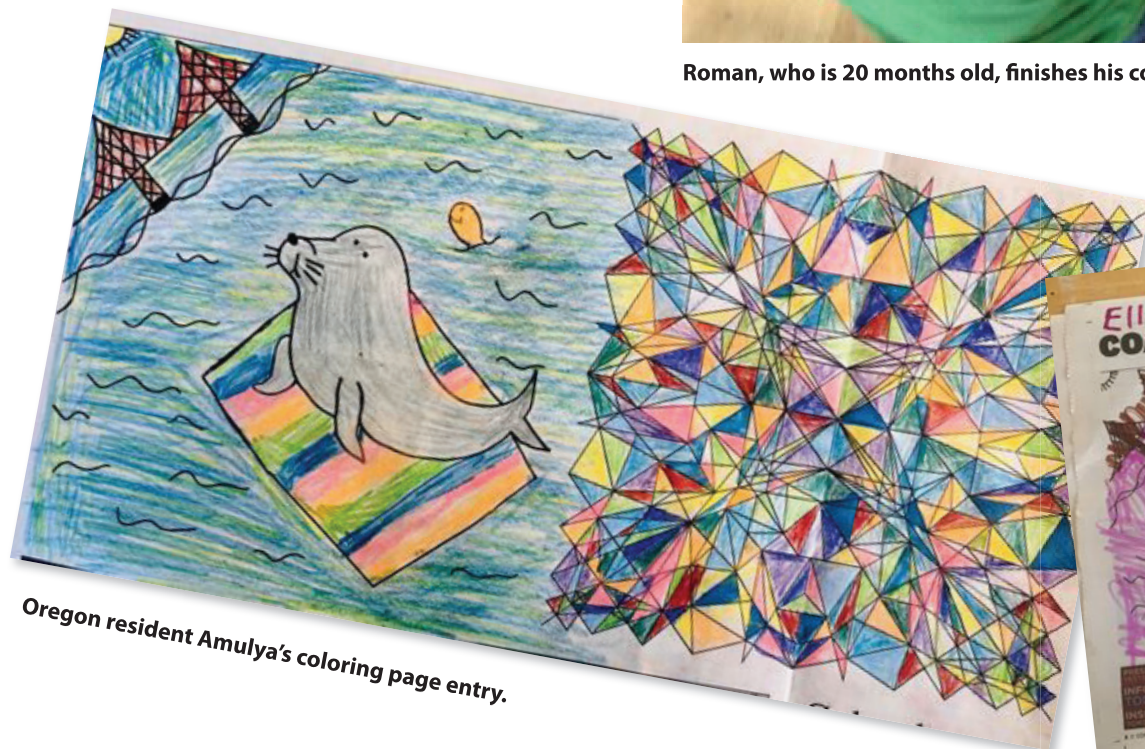

Tied for first place are Roman, of Ocean Park, Washington, and Amulya, of Clatskanie. The kids are joined by siblings Ella and Jack, of Astoria, who received the third highest amount of votes.

The winners range in age from 20 months to 11 years old.

Roman, Amulya, and Ella and Jack will receive a gift certificates good for any Fultano's Pizza location, thanks to a grant through Northwest Oregon Works and Oregon Coast Today.

Roman, who is 20 months old, finishes his coloring page.

Oregon resident Amulya's coloring page entry.

Ella, age 5, and Jack, age 7, worked together on their coloring page.
