

Food web aims to raise money to aid local food producers

ASTORIA — The North Coast Food Web is raising funds for a grant program to help local food producers.

The fund's goal is to aid local farmers and other food businesses that have been negatively impacted by the coronavirus. Money will be divided into small grants for applicants.

The food web has raised over $1,000. The organization is aiming to raise $5,000 to divide into five $1,000 grants or two $2,500 grants. Grantees won't be required to pay back any funds.

To donate or apply, visit northcoastfoodweb.org/covid19reliefgrant or email the food web at info@northcoastfoodweb.org.

Sou'wester launches no-contact market

Some of the items available at the Sou'wester Lodge market.

SEAVIEW — The Sou'wester Lodge is offering local residents a no-contact market.

Products include home and food items.

The lodge is among a few local markets still operating, including the pared down Astoria Sunday Market and the North Coast Food Web's Thursday market.

Customers can order products through the Sou'wester at souwestermarket.square.site/. Items can be picked up between noon and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Astoria's market is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Sundays off 12th St. between Duane and Exchange Streets. Information is available at astoriasundaymarket.com/ food-essentials-market.com/.

The food web's Thursday market requires online pre-orders. Information is available at northcoastfoodweb.org.
