Angora to hike Fort to Sea Trail

ASTORIA — The Angora Hiking Club will hike the Fort to Sea Trail from 9 a.m. to noon on Wednesday.

Participants should meet at 9 a.m. in the RV parking lot at Fort Clatsop, located to the right of the park's entrance. If interested in participating, call hike leader Arline LaMear at 503-338-6883 by Monday.

The hike will last about 6.5 miles, with varied landscapes including forest, plains, a cow pasture and bridges. The hike will count as an approved volkswalk for volkswalks participants.

Participants will follow social distancing guidelines. Hikers are expected to bring a mask, water and food. There will be restrooms at the start, finish and half-way point of the hike.

Bono's 'Oyster Spat' to be released on Friday

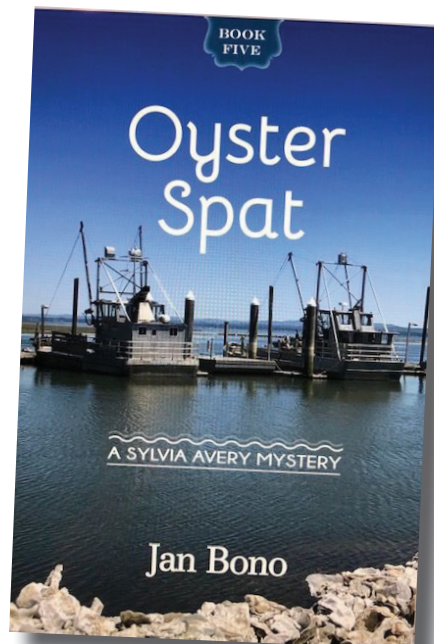

OCEAN PARK — Local author Jan Bono will host a release party for the fifth book in her Sylvia Avery mystery series from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Friday at the Peninsula Senior Activity Center, 21603 Pacific Highway in Ocean Park.

During the event, Bono will sign copies of the book.

"Oyster Spat" is set on the Long Beach Peninsula and tells the story of a feud between two oystermen who work on Wilapa Bay. The story covers themes including environmental issues, tideland ownership and burrowing shrimp control. The novel is considered a "cozy," which means it doesn't include graphic violence, obscene language or explicit sex scenes.

"What it does have is an amateur sleuth who works with the police department in a small town, a quirky cast of supporting characters and quite a bit of humor," Bono said in a press release.

"Oyster Spat" follows Bono's other titles, "Bottom Feeders," "Starfish," "Crab Bait" and "Hook, Line and Sinker." All five books will be available at the signing.

Participants will be expected to wear masks and follow social distancing guidelines.

Land conservancy hosts online info session

The North Coast Land Conservancy will host a virtual informational meeting at 6 p.m. Monday at nclctrust.org/event/intro-to-nclc.

The conservancy's executive director, Katie Voelke, will share information on the organization's history and conservation efforts on the North Coast. She will focus on how, where and why the conservancy works to preserve land.

Participants will also learn how to become a volunteer for the conservancy.

Seaside beach cleanup scheduled for Saturday

SEASIDE — A beach cleanup will be held in Seaside from 9 to 11:30 a.m. on Saturday. Participants should pick up bags and gloves at 60 N. Prom in Seaside.

The cleanup is part of a monthly cleanup hosted by Seaside Aquarium, SOLVE and the City of Seaside. This cleanup will be the first held since April. Events had been canceled in recent months as a precaution to spreading the coronavirus.

Participants can register for the event at solveoregon.org.
