

Mother and daughter duo Tracy and Brandi Gardner took over the business in 2017 and, between the two of them, have years of experience with horses. After moving to Long Beach in 2005, Brandi and her sisters got involved in the horseback riding scene along the peninsula, pulling Tracy along with them. It became a family activity and passion. Years later, they saw the opportunity to run their own trail riding business and share their love of horseback riding with the community.

"I love sharing the horses with people who have never even petted a horse before," Tracy said. Her best memories involve the happy smiles on children's faces after they finish their first ride.

If you're in Long Beach and are looking for another option, you can head over to Long Beach Horse Rides just across the street for a similar trail ride experience.

Sea Ranch Resort in Cannon Beach also offers daily trail rides during the summertime. Visitors can take an hour ride to Haystack Rock or to Chapman Point for equally beautiful views of the rocky coast. Two-hour rides south to Silver Point and sunset night rides are also available.

If you're farther south in the Nehalem area, Oregon Beach Rides offer beach and trail excursions to explore the backwoods and the coast. With Oregon Beach Rides, you can spend an entire day exploring Nehalem Bay State Park or ride off into the sunset across the sand dunes for a shorter, equally magical experience.

West Coast Horse Rides offers trail rides out to Long Beach every day in the summer and on weekends during the off season.
