

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION

Trump calls for order, blasts Biden

Defies virus with large crowd

By JONATHAN LEMIRE, MICHELLE L. PRICE and KEVIN FREKING
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump blasted Joe Biden as a hapless career politician who will endanger Americans’ safety as he accepted his party’s renomination Thursday on the South Lawn of the White House. While the coronavirus kills 1,000 Americans each day, Trump defied his own administration’s pandemic guidelines to speak for more than an hour to a tightly packed, largely maskless crowd.

Facing a moment fraught with racial turmoil, economic collapse and a national health emergency, Trump delivered a triumphant, optimistic vision of America’s future. But he said that brighter horizon could only be secured if he defeated his Democratic foe, who currently has an advantage in most national and battleground state polls.

“We have spent the last four years reversing the damage Joe Biden inflicted over the last 47 years,” Trump said, referring to the former senator and vice president’s career in Washington, D.C.

When Trump finished, a massive fireworks display went off by the Washington Monument, complete with explosions that spelled out “Trump 2020.”

His acceptance speech kicked off the final stretch of the campaign, a race now fully joined, and, despite the pandemic, soon to begin crisscrossing the country. Trump’s pace of travel will pick up to a near daily pace while Biden, who has largely weathered the pandemic from his Delaware home,

President Donald Trump and his family stand on the South Lawn of the White House on the fourth day of the Republican National Convention on Thursday.

Evan Vucci/AP Photo

announced Thursday that he will soon resume campaign travel.

Teasing once more that a vaccine could arrive soon, the president promised victory over the coronavirus pandemic that has killed more than 175,000 people, left millions unemployed and rewritten the rules of society. And, in the setting for his speech, Trump sought to project a sense of normalcy by throwing caution about the coronavirus aside.

All week long, Republicans at the convention tried to create the illusion that the pandemic is largely a thing of the past. The rows of chairs on the South Lawn were inches apart. Protective masks were not required, and COVID-19 tests were not administered to everyone.

As his speech brought the scaled-back Republican National Convention to a close, Trump’s incendiary rhetoric risked inflaming a divided nation reeling from a series of calamities, including the pandemic, a major hurricane that slammed into the Gulf Coast and nights of protest after Jacob Blake, a Black man, was shot by a white Wisconsin police officer. Prosecutors charged a white, 17-year-old police admirer with the fatal shooting of two protesters and wounding of a third.

The president spoke from a setting that was both familiar and controversial. Despite tradition and regulation to not use the White House for purely political events, a huge stage was set up outside the executive mansion, dwarfing the trappings for some of the most important moments of past presidencies. The speaker’s stand was flanked by dozens of American flags and two large video screens.

Trying to run as an insurgent as well as incumbent, Trump rarely includes calls for unity, even in a time of national uncertainty. Presenting himself as the last barrier protecting an American way of life under siege from radical forces, Trump has repeatedly, if not always effectively, tried to portray Biden — who is considered a moderate Democrat — as a tool of extreme leftists.

He mocked his opponent’s record and famous empathy, suggesting that “laid off workers in Michigan, Ohio, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania” don’t “want Joe Biden’s hollow words of empathy, they wanted their jobs back.”

In a week of racial tumult, Republicans have claimed that the violence that has erupted in Kenosha, Wisconsin, and some other American cities is to be blamed on Democratic governors and mayors and would only grow worse under a Biden administration. That drew a stern rebuke from Biden.

“The problem we have right now is that we are in Donald Trump’s America,” Biden said on MSNBC. “He views this as a political benefit to him, he is rooting for more violence, not less. He is pouring gasoline on the fire.”

Both parties are watching with uncertainty the developments in Wisconsin and cities across the nation with Republicans leaning hard on support for law and order — with no words offered for Black victims of police violence — while falsely claiming that Biden has not condemned the lawlessness.

Rudy Giuliani, Trump’s personal attorney and New York City’s former mayor, declared that Democrats’ “silence was so deafening that it reveals an acceptance of this violence because they will accept anything they hope will defeat President Donald Trump.”

Though some of the speakers, unlike on previous nights, offered notes of sympathy to the families of Black men killed by police, Giuliani also took aim at the Black Lives Matter movement, suggesting that it, along with antifa, was part of the extremist voices pushing Biden to “execute their pro-criminal, anti-police policies” and had “hijacked the protests into vicious, brutal riots.”

Along with Biden, running mate Kamala Harris offered counter-programming for Trump’s prime-time speech. She delivered a speech a half mile from the White House, declaring, “Donald Trump has failed at the most basic and important job of a president of the United States: He failed to protect the American people, plain and simple.”

Some demonstrators took to Washington’s streets Thursday night, ahead of a march planned for Friday. New fencing was set up along the White House perimeter to keep the protesters at bay, but some of their shouts and car horns were clearly audible on the South Lawn where more than 1,500 people gathered. Soon after Trump began talking, the horns and sirens — which came through occasionally to the millions watching at home — caused some people in the last row to turn around and look for the source of the disturbance.

The Youth of Clatsop County wish to express their Appreciation to the following buyers for making the 2020 Clatsop County Junior Market Auction A BIG SUCCESS!!!

A BIG thank you goes out to all the buyers who purchased animals from youth outside of the auction. You not only showed your generous support, but in part, helped contribute to keeping attendance numbers low during the live auction, which allowed room for other buyers in the community to show their support for youth as well!

The auction committee would also like to thank all of the volunteers, buyers, parents, and youth who attended the auction. We appreciated your patience and flexibility while following our local Phase 2 COVID-19 guidelines. Because of your cooperation we were able to make this auction happen and be successful!

Thank you to everyone who has contributed to the Animal Buyers Fund!

- A1 Ready Mix
- Ag-Bag Forage Solutions
- Astoria NW Homes
- Autio Company
- Baker's General Store
- Balensifer Fisheries
- Barendse, Aaron & Kelly
- Bergeman Construction
- Bergeson, Andrew
- Biamont Family Farm & Show Swine
- Big Creek Excavation
- Big Island Ranch
- BMFIC
- Borgen Custom Wood
- Bornstein Seafood's
- Bourrioux, Shawn
- Browning, Jared
- BS Crab & Shrimp Tales LLC
- Bruce Olson Tile
- Butler, Tiffany
- Brim Aviation
- Brim's Farm & Garden
- BS Excavation
- Buoy Beer Company
- Camp, Ashley
- Cary Johnson Custom Homes
- CCE Properties LLC
- CMG Management

- Coastal Restoration
- Columbia Memorial Hospital
- Columbia River Bar Pilots
- Culver, Kelly & Jill
- Cummings, Mike
- Curtis Tractor & Machines
- DB Trucking
- DK Windows
- Diane Barendse, CPA
- Dugan Family
- Englund Marine & Industrial Supply Co.
- Enke, Trudy
- Estes, Brett
- F & B Logging
- Fastabend, Heidi
- Fennerty, Gus
- Finn Family Enterprises LLC
- First Pass Outfitters
- Fishhawk Fisheries
- Fultano's Pizza-Astoria
- Gateway Community Church
- Goodman Family
- Gretchen Allen & Associates CPA
- Hale, Victoria
- Hampton Lumber Mill Maintenance Team
- Hampton Lumber-Warrenton
- Harber, Conor

- Helligso Construction
- Hernandez, Norma
- House, George & Marlene
- Hughes, Ken
- Hunsinger Fish
- Jewell School District
- Johnson, Betsy, Senator
- Johnson, Ryan
- K & M Medivan
- Kelly, Valerie
- Kinney & Sons
- Knutsen Insurance
- Lawrence Oil Co
- Lewis & Clark Bank
- Lewis & Clark Tree Farms, Greenwood Resources
- Lum's Auto Center
- Manna Movers LLC
- Mayhem Metalworks
- Mays Land & Livestock
- Morisse Logging
- Nate Malinen Trucking
- Northwest Ready Mix
- Nygaard Logging
- P&L Johnson Mechanical
- Parcel Assistant LLC
- Phillips, Matt & Bree
- Poulsen, Christopher & Allyson
- Rickenbach Construction

- Roberts, Gloria
- Rohne, Dirk & Amanda
- Safeway - Astoria
- Sarkie, Paul & Londa
- Seaside Attorneys
- Seaside Pet Clinic
- Seppa, Mike & Jeanne
- Springer's Garage
- Starley Family Dentistry
- Stemper Family
- Sterling Ficken Family
- Taylor, Dulcyce
- Teevin Bros. Land/Timber
- Terry's Plumbing
- Tikkala, Matthew
- Troedsson, Peter & Julie
- Tweedle Farms
- Wadsworth Electric
- Walluski Valley Fine Swine
- Warila Polled Herefords
- Warrenton Fiber
- Wickiup Ridge Construction
- Wilco
- Wild Goose Ice Cream Buggy
- Williams, Eric
- Wray, David & Casey
- Zschoche, Lena

A big Thank you to these businesses that paid the commission fees for the market auction.

Office 503.325.3748 - Fax 503.325.6305
37734 Eagle Lane, Astoria, OR 97103