

Dining united

United Way hosts campaign to support restaurants, organizations

BY KATHERINE LACAZE

Local restaurants and nonprofits are getting a helping hand during the coronavirus pandemic through a new campaign.

United Way of Clatsop County has created incentives for people to visit North Coast restaurants in its newest program, DINE UNITED. The program runs through Nov. 15.

“Whenever we shop local, dine local, donate local, we’re helping our community — we’re helping strengthen our community and the people who live here,” said Jennifer Holen, United Way of Clatsop County’s executive director. “That’s how you can really help — making those choices with the dollars you do have to spend.”

During the course of the campaign, United Way is offering incentives to drive additional business to the 30-plus participating restaurants. Holen expects that list to grow in the coming weeks.

If You Go

DINE UNITED

Until Nov. 15 at participating restaurants
Restaurants, donation link at clatsopunit-edway.org

See Page 5

The goal of United Way of Clatsop County’s monthlong DINE UNITED campaign is to raise money for local restaurants and nonprofit agencies.

Katherine Lacaze