

LET'S GET CREATIVE

Astoria residents invited to decorate downtown piano

BY ALYSSA EVANS

Astoria area residents have the opportunity to change part of downtown, thanks to a new contest.

A piano will be publicly displayed in Astoria starting next spring. The piano's owner, Katrina Nguyen, is accepting submissions from local residents interested in designing the piano to become a public art piece.

Submissions are accepted until Nov. 31 by emailing Nguyen at kknguyen@mail.com. Submissions should include a short biography, a list of what materials will be needed and the artist's contact information.

Piano project

Nguyen, who lives in Astoria and moved to the North Coast a few years ago, is an artist and self-described philosophical activist whose work incorporates music, art and community. Nguyen became inspired to start the contest after learning about John Wedell,
