Finnish play available to watch online

ASTORIA — Astor Street Opry Company and the Astoria Scandinavian Midsummer Festival Association will present a virtual reader's theater production Tuesday through June 30. The play is available to view for free starting at 5 p.m. on Tuesday at bit.ly/3uLLfml

The show, "Love and Politics," is a one-act play written by A.T. and published in 1906 in Finland. The vintage piece was found in the attic of Suomi Hall and translated by Sirpa Duoos. Actors recorded a performance at Suomi Hall, directed by ChrisLynn Taylor.

The play tells the tale of Mr. Ketonen, a widower, who wants his daughter to marry his best friend. Hilda, the daughter, doesn't want to marry her father's friend because she is in love with a local socialist leader, even though her father hates socialists.

Seaside Museum reopens

SEASIDE — The Seaside Museum will celebrate its reopening with a ribbon cutting at noon on Friday at the museum, 570 Necanicum Blvd.

The museum's reopening also marks the opening of a special exhibit by Oregon Historical Society, "Oregon Voices." The exhibit features five three-sided pop-up kiosks that explore some of the people, events and ideas that have shaped Oregon and fought for social change.

The museum is also featuring several new exhibits both indoors at the Butterfield Cottage buildings.

The ribbon cutting is sponsored by the Seaside Chamber of Commerce.

The museum will be open from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays.
