The Liberty Theatre is scheduled to open its doors again this weekend, ending a 15-month long closure due to the coronavirus pandemic.

"We're ready to be back," said Jennifer Crockett, the theater's executive director. "It's been really emotional for the staff. Not being open has been really hard."

The theater will kick things off with a performance from the 45th Parallel Universe Orchestra on Sunday. Theater staff are looking forward to a summer with safe and fun events where performers can go back to sharing their talents with the community, Crockett said.

The 45th Parallel Universe event will be indoors with masking and distancing guidelines.

The orchestra, based in Portland, describes themselves as a "collective of musicians who come together to celebrate great chamber music with intimate artistic expressions."

Crockett will be part of the show, where she will play the clarinet. This will be her first in-person performance since the pandemic started, she said.
