

Blues concert to be held Saturday in Cannon Beach

CANNON BEACH — The Tolovana Arts Colony will wrap up the 2021 Concert in the Park season with a tribute concert for musician Maggie Kitson Saturday night. The concert will be held at the park located northeast of the Cannon Beach Chamber of Commerce building at 2nd Street and Spruce.

In Cannon Beach, Kitson is often referred to as the “beloved first lady of the blues.” The show will feature Kitson’s friends and collaborators, who will pay respect to her musical influence in Cannon Beach and beyond.

The free, family-friendly concert begins at 5 p.m. Saturday. Attendees are encouraged to bring blankets, low-backed chairs and picnic baskets. Dogs, frisbees and soccer balls are welcome. Social distancing and masking requirements will be observed in accordance with Oregon state laws.

A tribute concert to musician Maggie Kitson is set for Saturday evening in Cannon Beach.

The concert is made possible by a community grant. For more information, visit tolovanaartscolony.org, email tolovanaartscolony@gmail.com or call 541-215-4445.

OLYMPIA, Wash. — In recognition of National and Washington Public Lands Day, entrance to Washington state lands will be free Saturday. Visitors will not need a Discover Pass to park in all visitor parking lots in Department of Natural Resources and Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife lands and day-use areas.

The free entrance day applies to Cape Disappointment State Park, Leadbetter State Park and several other state-owned lands located on or near the Long Beach Peninsula.

In 1994, National Public Lands Day was established as the fourth Saturday in September. The National Environmental Education Foundation coordinates the special day every year. In 2019, the Washington State Legislature passed a bill proclaiming the fourth Saturday in September as Washington Public Lands Day.
